Courts Order Halt To Strike

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Justice Department obtained temporary restraining orders from judges in six cities Friday, ordering striking East and Gulf Coast longshoremen back to work.

Government attorneys were at work in four other cities, meanwhile, seeking similar court action to end the 57-day-old walkout.

The Justice Department sought under the Taft-Hartley Act to end a strike by 45,000 members of the International Longshoremen's Association for an 80-day cooling-off period.

President Nixon ordered the action Thursday from the Western White House in San Clemente, Calif.

Temporary court orders were obtained Friday in New York; Philadelphia; Baltimore; Mobile, Ala.; Alexandria, Va.; and Savannah, Ga.—affecting a total of 37,000 workers.

Court hearings were scheduled Saturday on government suits in Boston, Houston and New Orleans and suits were still pending in Miami; Portland, Maine; and Province, R.I.

The Savannah court order had little practical affect, since longshoremen there were already working under a court order issued earlier this month in Tampa, Fla.

The earlier court action also affected longshoremen in Tampa; Jacksonville, Fla.; Georgeton, S.C., and Charleston, S.C.

A similar situation exists in New Orleans, where longshoremen were ordered back to work Oct. 27 by a federal judge who ruled they were engaging in an illegal secondary boycott. In the

In the New York suit, the government said the nation would suffer irreparable economic hardship should the strike continue. If it continues, the government said, it "will imperil the national health and safety."

In an affidavit with the suit, James M. Beggs, undersecretary of Transportation, estimated that the weekly dollar loss of revenues from exports and imports because of the strike is exceeding $340 million.

The temporary orders could be supplemented with injunctions that would stretch the back-to-work "cooling off period" to the maximum of 80 days provided by the Taft-Hartley law.

The court actions were being filed in U.S. district courts that have jurisdiction over the areas where employer associations and union locals are located, the spokesman said.

The New York action is directed at the "International Longshoremens Association, which has headquarters in that city.

The majority of the dock workers have been out since Oct. 1.

Activists, Peace Groups Set Up Political Party

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — Delegates from activist and peace groups voted Friday to set u a nationwide political party and christened it the "Peoples party."

The vote on the name was unanimous but other issues raised at the convention remained unresolved. Among the points still debated were:

—The desirability of nominating candidates for president and vice president for next year's elections;

—Approval of a campaign platform; and,

—Appointment of a so-called shadow cabinet whose members would keep tabs on the departments of government.

The vote to go ahead with a properly constituted party came from nearly all the 186 registered delegates at the four-day convention which opened Thanksgiving Day. But there were a few loud shouts of "No."

A dispute between those wanting a strong national organization and those who favored a loose knit, grass roots approach, immediately became apparent.

Baby doctor Benjamin Spock, who with novelist Gore Vidal is co-chairman of the participating New party, sat on the sidelines during the morning discussion.

Asked about the small turnout—about 2,000 delegates had been expected—Dr. Spock described the attendance as "respectable in numbers, though I wish it had been greater." He said he thought many of the young coalition members could not afford the trip to Dallas.

Spock said he would like to see consumer advocate Ralph Nader run for president, but added, "he (Nader) won't get into politics."

He added that the names of former Sen. Eugene McCarthy of Minnesota, Rep. Shirley Chisholm of New York and Sen. Fred Harris of Oklahoma, all Democrats, had been mentioned at the convention.

Political Leaders Try To Unite Ireland

BELFAST (AP) — Terrorist bombers hit three Northern Ireland towns Saturday and injured 17 persons while political leaders debated a British Laborite plan for uniting Ireland.

In Belfast, the provincial capital, bombs damaged stores and a police station. A booby-trap explosion destroyed an electrical shop, injuring four firemen and six other persons, among them two members of a German television crew.

Three downtown stores were badly damaged in Londonderry, the province's second city, and a firebomb was planted in its Altnagelvin hospital, one of the most advanced in Europe. A doctor spotted the bomb in an elevator and raised the alarm before it went off.

Another blast wrecked municipal offices in the town of Limavady.

Authorities blamed the blasts on the outlawed Irish Republican Army's guerrilla campaign to force Northern Ireland into a merger with the neighboring Irish Republic.

Earlier, IRA gunmen grabbed $17,500 in a holdup at a Belfast food packing plant, then planted a gelignite bomb that wrecked it. Three persons were hurt by flying glass.

Another IRA gun squad forced occupants of an office building on University Road to evacuate the building. A 50-pound bomb damaged three floors minutes later. Three women employes were treated for shock.

British troops raided St. Peter's secondary school on Beechmont Parade on a tipoff. They found small caches of arms and ammunition. Dermot Denvir, headmaster of the Roman Catholic school, complained bitterly of damage to school property. He claimed 30 to 40 doors were broken. An army spokesman denied the search did any unnecessary damage.

The big topic in beleagured Northern Ireland was a call by former British Prime Minister Harold Wilson, leader of the Labor party, for a unified Ireland.

Wilson's formula for peace called for unification over 15 years and approval by the people of both the mainly Catholic Irish republic and Protestant-dominated Northern Ireland.

Brian Faulkner, prime minister of Northern Ireland, rejected the concept.

"First," he said, "as a matter of fact the majority of people in Northern Ireland are determined to remain citizens of the United Kingdom. Secondly, as a matter of both common sense and justice no fundamental change unacceptable to the majority can be made."

Nixon Plans To Meet With British Leader

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (AP) — President Nixon, mapping out a December schedule of pre-Peking and Moscow summit meetings, announced Friday he will meet with Britain's Prime Minister Edward Heath in Bermuda Dec. 20-21.

The meeting comes just a week after another Atlantic island conference—Dec. 13-14 in the Azores with French President Georges Pompidou.

And there was speculation that still another meeting may be planned with West German Chancellor Willy Brandt in Nixon's announced desire to consult with "major allied leaders" prior to his visits next year to the two Communist capitals.

In an announcement, made simultaneously in London, the Western White House said Nixon and Heath planned "full consultations" and their meetings will be "strictly business."

Nixon will be accompanied to both meetings by Secretary of State William P. Rogers, Secretary of the Treasury John B. Connally and national security adviser Henry A. Kissinger.

Press secretary Ronald Ziegler noted that Rogers and Connally also will be consulting allied leaders at a Dec. 9-10 semi-annual meeting of NATO foreign ministers in Brussels.

Bermuda, site of the second summit, is in the western Atlantic, 580 miles east of North Carolina. It has been a popular resort sport for many American tourists. Nixon will be Heath's guest there for the two days in the pre-Christmas season.

As with the Pompidou meeting in the Portuguese Azores, the Western White House said the details of the meeting places and other arrangements have not yet been determined.

There was no precise explanation for the selection of island meeting places.

Ziegler said the President will return to Washington after both trips.

As for additional summit talks, perhaps with Brandt or Italy's Prime Minister Emilio Colombo, Ziegler said "at this time we don't have anything to tell you about other meetings."

Nixon discussed the forthcoming Bermuda meeting with Heath in a Thanksgiving Day telephone call the President made to the prime minister.

At his ocean front home here, Nixon spent the second day of a California sojourn in consultations with members of his staff, with no public schedule.

On Saturday, though, he will fly to Palm Desert, about 100 miles from Los Angeles, to take part with Mamie Eisenhower, Bob Hope and a gathering of celebrities in the morning dedication ceremonies of a $7.5-million 140-bed Dwight D. Eisenhower Memorial Hospital.

Dock Strikes Blamed For Big Trade Deficit

By LAURANCE F. STUNTZ
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Effects of the prolonged dock strikes were a major contributing factor to the record trade deficit announced Friday by the federal government. The figures do not necessarily mean a failure of U.S. efforts to counter the trade imbalance.

Some observers believe that President Nixon's move for a court-ordered halt to the longshoremen's strike on the East and Gulf coasts is due to the trade figures, which showed the greatest deficit since World War II.

Much of America's exports are bulk products—grain to Europe, for instance, and coal to Japan. Such heavy low-value exports must go by ship. With the East and Gulf coasts strike on since Oct. 1, the flow of these dollar-earning goods has been cut off.

But this is not true of imports into this country. America buys such high value goods as radios and television receivers from Japan, cameras from Japan and Germany, gloves from Italy. Such low-bulk products can be brought in by air cargo and the import figures show they were imported that way. So America can import the goods she wants, by air, but cannot export the bulk goods which must go by ship.

The shipping strike is not the only reason for the balance of trade deficit, of course. The same factors which brought about the Aug. 15 efforts to reduce imports are still effective. Even though the dollar has been effectively devalued, making United States goods cheaper overseas, the devaluation has not been enough to turn around the balance of trade. United States authorities say they must increase their trade by $13 billion to correct the imbalance. Instead, this year, the deficit has been increasing.

Parts Of State Still Snowbound

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Northeastern Pennsylvania continued to dig out of the Thanksgiving Eve snowstorm which dumped a near record 20.1 inches of snow in the area's first storm of the winter.

The storm, which covered most of the state except the southeastern corner, was only .9 of an inch away from the record 21 inches of snow which fell in Scranton in January 1964. However, the snow reached up to 24 inches in some rural areas.

The Factoryville area near Scranton was still snowbound Friday and traffic was reduced to one lane on interstates 80 and 81.

State police reported more than 2,000 cars stranded on the two interstate highways Thursday.

State police at Milford reported more than 100 persons in their barracks, including two busloads of teenagers from the Wallenpaupack Area School District returning from New York City.

Schuylkill County was hard hit with about two feet of snow. State police used snowmobiles to rescue some stranded motorists and took them to local borough halls where they celebrated the holiday with hot dogs and coffee.

About 30,000 homes in the Harrisburg area were without electric power Thursday.

Traffic Death Toll Hits 273

The nation's traffic death toll reached 273 at midnight, the halfway point in the four-day Thanksgiving Day holiday weekend.

Snow pelted the nation's northern midlands, while the Northeast had as much as 2 feet of snow that caused additional hazards for motorists.

The count of traffic deaths began at 6 p.m. local time Wednesday and will end at midnight Sunday.

Drivers Over 10-Point Limit In Trouble Again

HARRISBURG (AP) — The state's Department of Transportation is once again issuing suspenstion notices for drivers who run afoul of the penalty system, but it will be several weeks before PennDOT catches up with its backlog.

More than 3,000 motorists have exceeded the 10-point limit since Oct. 26, when a three-judge federal panel in Pittsburgh ruled that drivers should be able to get a hearing before their licenses are recalled.

The decision put a roadblock in front of PennDOT procedures, idling the system of license suspensions for a full month.

After revising its procedures, PennDOT began processing suspension notices again on Friday. But a spokesman said it would be weeks before the 3,000-plus backlog is eliminated.

Some drivers will receive notification early next week that they will have to send their licenses to Harrisburg. The others may not hear from PennDOT for a week or more, but eventually the agency will reach them.

Every driver who faces suspension will have between 20 and 30 days to mail his license back to the department, the spokesman said.

Under the revised procedures, each driver has the right to a pre-suspension hearing in an attempt to keep his license, but only on the following grounds:

—Mistaken identity, a case in which an innocent person receives a suspension notice for someone else with the same name.

— Error in computation of penalty points.

— Failure of the Commonwealth to erase penalty points for the driver credits allowed by the point system.

— Error on the form for report of conviction that is submitted to PennDOT by the traffic court that orginally dealt with the driver.

The courts have not yet given formal approval to these revised procedures, but Michael Deckman, the assistant attorney general who set them up, said that the court has indicated that the limited hearings will be acceptable.

The judges in Pittsburgh ruled that the state could not suspend licenses of point violators without first allowing a hearing for the driver. Previously, the law provided for limited judicial review of a suspension only after a driver's license was taken away.

MARKET PRICES GO UP!

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock market prices registered sharp advances Friday in slow trading. Analysts said the stock market was responding to favorable news developments.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks closed ahead 17.96 points at 816.59, its biggest single session jump since a record 32.93-point advance Aug. 16 after announcement of the wage-price freeze.

Among issues traded on the New York Stock Exchange, advances outpaced declines by about 4 to 1.

Big Board volume totaled 10.88 million shares, compared with the 11.9 million shares that changed hands Wednesday, the last trading day before Thanksgiving.

Analysts attributed the strong rally to a combination of factors, including the announcement that the government's leading economic indicators rose sharply last month and President Nixon's move to end the Gulf and East Coast dock tieups with strike injunctions.

Indian Troops Move Inside East Pakistan

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Indian troops occupy positions at three places inside East Pakistan and heavy fighting was underway Friday, Pakistan's eastern command headquarters in Dacca reported.

India said earlier Friday that its troops crossed into East Pakistan, inflicted about 80 casualties and destroyed a tank. It said the raid followed a Pakistani artillery attack on Indian territory, but gave no exact date.

Border clashes between India and Pakistan have intensified in recent weeks, bringing the two countries to the brink of war over civil strife in East Pakistan that has sent millions of refugees fleeing to India.

The Pakistan eastern command said at least 10 Indian divisions totaling between 180,000 and 200,000 men were engaged in the East Pakistan conflict.

Brigadier G. M. D. Siddiqui, the army chief of staff, said Pakistani forces had knocked out 20 Indian tanks since the start of the fighting last week. Siddiqui said the heaviest fighting was at the Belonia Bulge, a salient in the India-Pakistan border 70 miles northwest of the East Pakistan port of Chittagong.

In other developments:

—Pakistan's president, Gen. Agha Mohammed Yahya Khan, banned the National Awami Party, charging that factions of the West Pakistani organization were working with the enemy. Yahya banned the unrelated Awami League in East Pakistan last March when he cracked down on a move for autonomy there.

—In the United Nations General Assembly in New York, Communist China and Pakistan accused the Soviet Union of encouragng Indian aggression against Pakistan. India denied there was any aggression. Delegates said the 15 members of the Security Council were consulting on whether to have a meeting on the crisis.

OBITUARIES

LOUIS A. MAU

Louis A. Mau, 75, of 5 High st., Youngsville, died at 3 a.m. Friday, Nov. 26, 1971 at Warren General Hospital.

He was born Oct. 30, 1898 at Fredonia, N.Y., son of the late Wilhelm and Kuniguntie Craft Mau. On March 1, 1923 he married the former Bessie Schrader, who survives. He came to Youngsville 33 years ago as station agent for the New York Central Railroad and after 43 years in service retired in April 1958. He then worked for two years for the Youngsville Star Manufacturing Co. before retiring from the position.

He was Past Master of Sylvan Lodge F&AM, Sinclairville, N.Y. and had been a Past Patron and Past District Grand Lecturer of Sylvia Chapter of the OES.

Survivors, in addition to his wife, include one son, Stanley of Dayton, N.Y.; one brother, Ed of Corry and three nieces and three nephews.

In addition to his parents, he was preceded in death by two sisters, Anna Sweet and Elnora Schoenfeldt, and two brothers, Fred and Walter.

Friends may call from 2 to 4 and 7 to 9 p.m. today at the McKinney Funeral Home, Youngsville, where funeral services will be held at 2:30 p.m. Sunday with the Rev. Ray Forstrom of Sarah Lutheran Church, Youngsville, officiating. Burial will follow in Warren County Memorial Park, Starbrick.

Members of Stillwater Lodge 547, F&AM., are invited to attend the Masonic ritual services at 8 p.m. today at the funeral home. The rites will be conducted by Sylvan Lodge of Sinclairville, N.Y. Lodge of Sinclairville, N.Y.

STEVE J. HOVANIC

Funeral services for Steve J. Hovanic, 61, of Pittsfield, who died Monday were held at 10 a.m. Friday, Nov. 26, 1971 at St. Luke's Church, Youngsville with the Rev. Joseph Wiley celebrating the Mass of the Ressurection. Burial was in Pine Grove Cemetery, Corry, with the following bearers: Steve Kostal, Walter Kushner, Emil Toplovich, Buddy Barber, Lyle Watkins, Paul Toplovich, Ed Hovanic and Joe Hovanic. The Christian Wake service was held at 8:30 p.m. Thursday at the McKinney Funeral Home, Youngsville.

AT LAST – HE'S HERE!

Santa Claus arrived in Warren Friday morning with a big parade to herald his appearance. He immediately set up temporary headquarters on Liberty st. and the youngsters flocked to his lap to whisper their most cherished wants in his ear. Miss Anna Schutte, 9, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Giles Schutte of 7 Quaker Court, Warren, was among the first of the line-up to whisper her dearest Christmas wishes in the old gentleman's ear. Santa, apparently, knows exactly what a young girl would like, for he is keeping his eye on the photographer. (Photo by Mansfield)

Allied Forces Pursue Elusive Foe In Cambodia

SAIGON (AP) — South Vietnamese forces looking for enemy bases pursued an elusive foe in eastern Cambodia Friday amid reports of a big North Vietnamese supply buildup on the Ho Chi Minh Trail in Laos.

Informants said sensors planted along the 3,000-mile trail are registering 150 to 200 truck movements a day, compared to only 10 daily during the monsoon season that ended last month. Road-building squads also are at work despite daily U.S. air strikes.

"We expect a big supply push at this time of the year," one source reported. "Most of the convoy activity is still at the northern end of the trail, on both sides of the Laos-North Vietnam border."

He added it would take 90 days for these supplies to reach three North Vietnamese divisions hiding in rubber plantation country along the Cambodian border northwest of Saigon, meaning they cannot be resupplied until February.

This could be one of the reasons why the enemy has avoided contact so far with a 25,000-man South Vietnamese force maneuvering around Krek, a Cambodian town near the border.

Saigon headquarters reported three South Vietnamese soldiers wounded in their five-day-old offensive along Highway 7, 60 to 90 miles northwest of here.

Government paratroopers have advanced 10 miles northwest of Krek to Chrum, while rangers and armor have pushed 20 miles east of Krek to Mimot. The latter town is 25 miles from Snuol, where South Vietnamese forces suffered a disastrous defeat with 500 casualties last May.

Enemy forces appear to have pulled back, at least for the moment.

A South Vietnamese officer told Associated Press correspondent J. T. Wolkerstorfer the task force of rangers spearheaded by an armored column would continue moving east on Highway 7 toward Snuol.

Another high field commander said opposition was not expected in the initial stages of the South Vietnamese drive.

Most of the air support is being provided by South Vietnamese aircraft, although U.S. spokesmen listed 320 helicopter gunship missions on both sides of the Cambodian border in the past two days.

The U.S. Command announced the withdrawal of 13 more Army units from Vietnam, including another battalion of the 101st Airborne Division and nine helicopter and fixed-wing aviation companies.

They added 3,233 reductions to the pre-Christmas cutbacks, accelerated by a directive from President Nixon to paratroop strength in Vietnam by 45,000 men before the end of January.

Searchers Comb Foothills For Parachuting Hijacker

WOODLAND, Wash. (AP) — Searchers combed a stretch of mountain foothills Friday for the meticulous, parachuting hijacker of a Northwest Airlines jet. One sheriff's deputy said the man was "probably long gone" with a ransom of 10,000 twenty-dollar bills.

A 100-man posse, aided by 10 patrol cars and temporarily by six helicopters, fanned out in a five-mile line looking for two white parachute canopies and portions of a pink chute used by the hijacker Wednesday night.

Patchy fog hung over the sparsely populated area in the Cascade Mountains. Intermittent rain and generally deteriorating weather conditions forced authorities to send the helicopters back to their base.

"We're either looking for a parachute or a hole in the ground," said Undersheriff Tom McDowell.

The hijacker, identified by the FBI only as "D. B. Cooper" commandeered the Northwest Airlines Boeing 727 jet over Seattle Wednesday and ordered it to fly to Mexico after a refueling stop in Seattle. He demanded and received $200,000 and four parachutes while the plane was in Seattle.

In making an unprecedented parachute escape from the plane, the middle-age hijacker took with him the $200,000 ransom from the airline, believed the largest ever paid in the United States.

The pilot, Capt. William Scott, told authorities he believed the man bailed out of the plane near Woodland, about 25 miles north of Portland, Ore.

When the plane landed at Reno, Nev., Wednesday night the man, the $200,000 and two of the four parachutes were missing.

FBI agent Tom Manning, coordinating the search said details of the plane's speed, course and prevailing winds at the time were fed into a computer at Ft. Lewis, Wash., to help pinpoint where the man bailed out.

Manning said a partially torn parachute was found in the plane. The hijacker may have used pieces of that chute to bind the money to him when he jumped, Manning said. Officials refused to say if the $20 bills were marked.

Searchers contacted residents of the area Friday to ask whether they observed a parachute or anything unusual in the area.

Two of the parachutes delivered to the plane were military type which open almost immediately after the jumper leaves the aircraft. The other two were sport types which the chutist can delay opening.

Earl Cossey of Seattle Sky Sports, who packed the four parachutes, said one was a training model which could neither be fastened to a parachute harness nor opened in the air.

Charles Gulinsky, FBI agent in Las Vegas, Nev., said "we have no reason to suspect any one was bad" of the two chutes found in the plane. He said one was a front pack and the other a backpack type.

"We know the backpack was a good chute. We strongly suspect the front pack was good," Gulinsky said.

The hijacking began when the man told a stewardess he had a bomb and wanted to go to Mexico shortly after the plane left Portland for Seattle.

Authorities have described the hijacker as well-dressed and very calm and the stewardess he first approached said Friday she thought he was asking her for a date.

There was no sky marshal aboard the plane, government spokesmen in Washington said Friday, explaining that the officers are only assigned to flights which officials believe on the basis of intelligence may be hijacked.

After allowing the 36 passengers and two of the stewardesses to leave the plane in Seattle, the hijacker ordered the 727 to be flown no higher than 10,000 feet and with the rear boarding door down, the landing gear extended and 15-degree flaps.

He remained alone in the unlighted passenger compartment in subzero temperatures.

The FBI said the hijacker was believed to have left the plane 35 minutes after takeoff from Seattle.

Three Air Force planes tailed the hijacked 727 but officials refused to say if a parachute was seen. They admitted a person jumping free fall before opening a sport parachute might not be observed in the darkness.

Navy Fails To Report Loss Of 7 Warplanes

SAIGON (AP) — A number of U.S. Navy warplanes lost in the Vietnam war from operational failures were not reported lost by the U.S. Command, spokesmen confirmed Friday.

Navy officials responding to inqueries said they had not reported the loss of seven planes in the past three months from what they termed nonhostile causes such as mechanical failures or pilot disorientation. Four pilots have been killed.

losses are reported as they occur but planes lost to nonhostile causes are not listed in the U.S. Command's weekly status report because of "different operating channels."

Officials said the Navy generally reports so-called "nonhostile" losses only when queried, even though the planes may be going to or returning from a combat mission when they crash.

There are exceptions when the Navy on its own initiative will disclose operational losses, particularly if there is a heavy loss of life.

Navy spokesmen said they had no figures available in Saigon on the number of planes lost to nonhostile causes during the past six years.

"We have different operating channels," said one Navy officer, "and we are not considered a part of the U.S. Command's assets."

Despite this, the Command's weekly status report leaves the clear impression that it is all-inclusive.

Governor Praises Warden For Role In Prison Revolt

RAHWAY, N.J. (AP) — Gov. William T. Cahill met Friday with the warden and five guards hospitalized with injuries suffered in the 24-hour Rahway State Prison revolt and said, "I'm very proud of them all for what they did during some very trying hours."

All six, including superintendent U. Samuel Vukcevich, were in satisfactory condition in Rahway Memorial Hospital, with no serious injuries. Eight other guards were treated for minor injuries suffered during the 24-hour revolt, which ended peacefully late Thursday night when state officials agreed to consider prisoner grievances.

Cahill singled out Vukcevich for his "courageous leadership." The superintendent was one of six men taken hostage Wednesday night by the rebellious inmates. He was among the last four released by the prisoners Thursday night after the prisoners were permitted to present a list of their demands to newsmen.

Prior to his appearance in the hospital, the governor announced in Trenton that the inmates would elect five representatives to discuss their grievances with a special five-man committee that will include Vukcevich.

Cahill said the election would be held Saturday or soon afterwards.

Five laywers from the state's Public Defender's office entered the prison Friday to consult with prisoners requesting legal aid.

Earlier in the day, Vukcevich met with newsmen in his hospital room and asserted there was "no organization, no leadership" in the revolt.

An injured guard, Edward O'Beirne, 42, said Thursday that an inmate he identified only as "Thomas" was the ringleader of the revolt.

O'Beirne was discharged from Rahway Hospital after treatment for a stab wound.

Vukcevich, looking tired as he peered through a maze of television lights and radio micorphones, praised the governor for his handling of the insurrection.

In a related development, Cahill called a meeting of state officials and community leaders Friday to outline ways in which future disorders might be prevented.

Vukcevich refused to compare the situation at Rahway with the one that existed last September at Attica State Prison in New York prior to the decision by officials to storm that institution.

Vukcevich singled out for praise a prisoner he was unable to identify by name, noting that the inmate had applied stitches to a back wound he received when he was "stomped" during the rioting Wednesday night.

"Without him, I'd be in quite bad shape," Vukcevich said. The stitches were sewn so competently, he said, that doctors at the hospital left them in.

Asked whether he supported the demands of the prisoners, Vukcevich said he hadn't heard them all.

Among the 14 demands forwarded to officials by representatives of the rebellious inmates were pleas for improved medical care, education and vocational training and parole practices, and an end to what was termed "racism by officials."

Youth Involved In Hunting Accident

TITUSVILLE—A 14-year-old youth from RD 1, Guys Mills, will be charged with hunting while unaccompanied by an adult as a result of an accident Monday in Randolph Township.

William Lee of Titusville, game protector, said the youth should have been accompanied by a person 21 years of age or over since game laws rule that anyone under 16 must be accompanied by an adult.

The youth was hunting with Robert Allen, 17, of RD 1, Guys Mills, when the 14-year-old accidentally shot Allen. Allen is listed in satisfactory condition at Spencer Hospital with injuries to the lower abdomen and thighs from pellets from a 20-gauge shotgun.

5 Shot To Death In Home Incident

LANCASTER, Calif. (AP) — Five persons were shot to death and one was wounded during a family disturbance here Friday, the sheriff's office said.

Sheriff's Deputy Dennis Slocumb said preliminary reports indicated four died at the scene and one in a hospital. Three of the dead were believed to be members of the same family, he said.

Identities and details were not immediately known.

Report $600 Damage

Two cars suffered a total of $600 damage on U.S. 6 about two miles east of Clarendon when they were involved in an accident at 1:25 p.m. Friday, said State Police at the Warren substation who investigated.

According to the report, a car operated by Colin N. Brunecz, 21, of Rt. 1, Sugar Grove, was traveling east on U.S. 6 when it ran off the highway, went out of control and spun around and side swiped an oncoming car operated by Charles A. Weber, 52, of 315 E. 9th st., Erie. No injuries were reported.

Pittsburgh Mayor Vetoes Skybus

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Mayor Pete Flaherty vetoed two ordinances Friday night that would have supplied the Port Authority Transit with land near the Wabash Tunnel for the right-of-way of the controversial Skybus.

Council passed the ordinances on Nov. 15 and will have a chance to override the vetos Dec. 6 when it holds its next legislative meeting.

Flaherty said he vetoed the ordinances on grounds that Allegheny County is approaching the experimental transit system "on a piecemeal basis" without clearly disclosing its full cost.

He said skybus backers are seeking to get the project started with a $4.7 million commitment in construction costs into the tunnel, adding:

"The aim of the Port Authority and its proponents is to begin piecemeal construction to prevent any turning back, and thus force the people into an irrevocable position.

" . . . . It is arbitrary and capricious to begin construction and rehabilitation of the Wabash Tunnel site without having first acquired all the rights of way along the proposed . . . . line."

Flaherty earlier had asked council not to pass the two bills, contending the system may cost twice as much to build as the Port Authority says.

"The total cost and plans of the entire transit system is being withheld deliberately in order to prevent a referendum by the people of Allegheny County," he said.

He said a referendum "can and should be placed on the ballot at the Spring Primary Election or sooner if the County Commissioners will call for a special election."

Wattsburg Girl Killed By Car

ERIE, Pa. (AP) — An Erie County girl died Friday after being struck by a car as she and her boyfriend were standing alongside their disabled vehicle on Pennsylvania 430, 20 miles southeast of here, police said.

The girl was identified as Paulette Weidler, 19, of R.D. 2, Wattsburg . Injured in the accident was Gilbert Horvath, also 19, of R.D. 4, Union City.

Police said Horvath was pouring gasoline into his car from a can while Miss Weidler stood nearby Thursday night when they were hit by a passing car, driven by John Parkes, 81, of suburban Erie.

Denies Reports State To Lose Highway Funds

HARRISBURG (AP) — Transportation Secretary Jacob Kassab dismissed reports Friday that Pennsylvania stood to lose $27.6 million in federal highway funds because of delays in approving construction plans.

Kassab admitted that new environmental restrictions on highway design and construction, coupled with delays in approval of a highway capital budget, left Pennsylvania without immediate building plans.

But he maintained that the federal money would be available to the state as soon as the general assembly approves a capital budget and the department secures the necessary project approvals from a variety of environmental agencies.

The $27.6 million represents the federal allotment for the first quarter of fiscal 1972, a spokesman for PennDOT said. The total allocation for Pennsylvania is $256.6 million through the end of the fiscal year.

Boy, Hit By Car, Escapes Injury

A 12-year old boy was struck on Market st., near Water st., at 6:15 p.m. Friday, but was not injured, according to Warren Borough police who investigated.

Samuel Albert Parks, 12, of 220 Follet Run rd., was crossing Market st. in a westerly direction when he walked into the front end of a car operated by Judy Ann McElhattan, 17, of 159 Weiler rd., Warren, police said.

Earlier Friday, at 3:38 p.m., a total of $595 property damage accrued from a two car accident on Pennsylvania ave. west near Hickory st. intersection, police reported.

A car operated by James E. McElhinney, 52, of 249 Beachgrove dr., Erie, had slowed and stopped with the flow of traffic and then began to move again with the traffic when it was struck in the rear by a car operated by James P. Parti, 19, of 8 Mead st., Warren, who had apparently taken his eyes off the road for a moment when he observed the traffic beginning to move again. Both cars were traveling west on Pennsylvania ave. west.

Pays $787,500 For Painting

LONDON (AP) — An anonymous private collector paid $787,500 at Christie's auction house Friday for the painting "The Ponte Delle Navi" by Bernardo Bellotto.

It was more than five times the amount paid at a previous auction for this 18th century Italian artist. This was last June at Christie's when Bellotto's "View of Castle Sonnenstein on the Elbe at Pirra" went for $144,375.

Court Injunction Blocks Penn Central Shareholders Meeting

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — A U.S. District Court judge issued a preliminary injunction Friday blocking Monday's scheduled shareholder meeting of the Penn Central Co., parent company of the financially troubled Penn Central railroad.

Instead Judge Joseph Lord III set a hearing for 10 a.m. Monday on whether to make the injunction permanent.

The injunction came as the result of a suit filed by attorney David Berger on behalf of Richard S. and Florence H. Robinson of Merion, who own more than 10,000 shares of the company's common stock.

The Penn Central Co.'s sole asset is the railroad, which is now in reorganization proceedings in federal court.

The suit is a class action asking for damages, the appointment of a receiver to manage and control the firm's assets during the litigation, and the blocking of a refinancing plan.

The refinancing is to be handled by a group of Swiss financiers. The suit alleges that the proxies sent out in advance of the meeting failed to point out that Swiss noteholders will gain "effective working control of the company" if the plan is approved.

The plan would postpone until 1966 the payment of a $55 million debt now due. The refinancing plan was to come to a vote at Monday's meeting, which is already six months late.

"If the plan is not approved," the proxy statement warns, "the company will not have the funds to meet the Nov. 30, 1971, maturity of this debt and its creditors may seek to place the company in bankruptcy or receivership or the company itself may petition for reorganization under bankruptcy law."

No assets of the Penn Central Transportation Co. or of its real estate and pipeline subsidiaries —reportedly worth more than $6 billion — can be used by the parent company to pay the $55 million debt. These are frozen by a federal judge now supervising the railroad reorganization.

The Penn Central Co. filed its 1970 annual report last month, the first since the railroad's June, 1970, bankruptcy action.

It reported a net loss of nearly $426 million, all but $217,000 charged to the railroad operation.

In 1969 the loss was $121.6 million, while in 1968 Penn Central reported a profit of $90.3 million.

Named as defendants in the suit were Archibald De B. Johnson, president, treasurer and director of the firm, and four directors, Edward J. Eggart, Robert D. Hedberg, J. Wallace Scott Jr., and Francis Tucker.

The suit charged that statements made by the company in soliciting the proxies were false and violated the Securities Exchange Act of 1934. The suit charged the statements were designed to facilitate the refinancing agreement with shareholder approval.

Warren Police Dept. Gets Breathalyzer

The Warren Borough Police Department received a $1,000 breath analysis kit Wednesday according to Bernard Winegardner, chief of police.

The unit, manufactured by the Stephenson Company of Red Bank, N.J., was partially financed through Warren Borough funds. Approximately 50 percent of the purchase price, however, came from a "Highway Safety Grant" supplied by the Pennsylvania Department of Transportation.

The machine will be used, according to Winegardner, "every time we suspect a driver is under the influence." In past years the Borough Police have tested suspected drunk drivers at the State Police Barracks in North Warren. According to Winegardner this has been inconvenient for both enforcement agencies and frequently a burden on the state police's limited force.

"At one time we had to pull seven state troopers into court to testify about breathalyzer tests they had administered on borough drivers," the police chief said.

In the future borough drivers will be tested at the Warren Borough Police Station by one of the four local officers that have been trained to operate the breathalyzer machine.

Winegardner said that one officer from each of the department's platoons was trained in the use of the machine last winter at the State Police Academy.

The breathalyzer, which is slightly smaller than a breadbox, is designed to accurately measure an individuals blood alcohol content by analyzing breath samples.

A BOXING YARN

NEW YORK -- When Terry Daniels regains consciousness on the evening of Jan. 15, he will awake to a unique distinction. He will be the only artisan skilled at needlepoint to have fought for the heavyweight championship of the world.

"A girl showed me how," the young man said about his talent for embroidery. "I enjoy it. It's relaxing. I can push the needle through back and forth and think about other things."

Things like slugging Joe Frazier and getting slugged back,-which are on Terry's agenda for the eve of Super Bowl VI in New Orleans. As a professional prizefighter, Daniels has won 29 bouts, lost two decisions and been stiffened by Floyd Casey and Jack O'Halloran,whose names are household words only in the Casey and O'Halloran households. In art needlework, however, he has advanced far beyond the stitching of samplers festooned with forget-me-nots and reading "God Bless Our Home." While training for the title fight he will be working on an equally ambitious project -- a pattern showing Joe Frazier taking a punch in the nose.

"Actually," he said, "The pattern is a painting of Cassius Clay hitting Frazier but my needlepoint will show a white fighter with pink trunks."

Here, indeed, is a wedding of the arts; a practitioner of the Sweet Science who exalts the needle; Nat Fleischer's Ring Record Book crossed with Godey's Lady Book; a modern John L. Sullivan announcing to the home economics class, "I can beat any seamstress in the house!"

Presented to the eastern press in a Manhattan saloon, the newest challenger for Frazier's crown turned out to be a personable young man of 25, articulate, alert, with self-assurance beyond the call of prudence. He was a fullback in high school and played freshman football as a defensive back at Southern Methodist until a knee injury put a stop to that. He lacks nine credit-hours for a degree of Bachelor of Science in government and when the match was made, a newspaper headline announced that Frazier was going to fight a "college student." Daniels took umbrage.

"One thing I want to get clear," he said when he was introduced. "I am not a college student. Call me a professional athlete, which is what I am."

Ultimately, he said, he would return to school. "Hopefully, I'll be the greatest lawyer in the world after I'm the greatest fighter."

Then, facing a roomful of strangers, he let a trace of impatience creep into his voice. "This is for you to get acquainted with me," he said. "Come on, ask me questions."

They asked him why he thought he was ready for Frazier and he said: "I was confronted with a chance to fight for the heavyweight championship of the world. I accepted that chance."

He said he wouldn't be awed by Frazier "because I've already had the experience of being awestruck." This happened, he said, when he boxed Floyd Patterson and lost a 10-round decision. He was also outpointed this year by Tony Doyle but since then he has punched big Manuel Ramos around and stopped Ted Gullick in three. His other victories were scored against people named Dickie Willis and Joe Sharlow.

"How would you describe yourself--" somebody began.

"Good looking," Daniels said.

"-- As a boxer, a puncher, or what?" the questioner went on.

"I combine all these things," the young man said. "I can be tough and aggressive but I can move backward, too. I'm not the best stylist in the world or the fastest or the best puncher but I think I put these three qualities together best.

"I'm going to train in Dallas until--" he broke off when Frazier, who had been listening, got up and crossed the room.

"Don't go away," Terry said.

A skillful job of selling ensued. There were films showing both Frazier and Daniels against Ramos. Gil Clancy, director of boxing for an outfit called Century Telesports Network, the promoter, gave a running commentary implying that Frazier was lucky against Ramos (whom he took out in the second round) and that Daniels destroyed the Mexican (who went the distance).

"You're selling the press," an onlooker told an officer of Century, "But the press doesn't buy tickets. How are you going to sell enough tickets and enough time to sponsors on home television to break even? You're asking $100 tops for a $7.50 fight."

The man from Century talked fast. It sounded as though he said 30 individuals were underwriting the show for $10,000 each. Furthermore, he said, New Orleans would be full of football fans seeking entertainment.

"They used to run fights in Louisville on the eve of the Kentucky Derby," the other said, "And they drew fishcakes. On Derby Eve the visitors drink. In New Orleans they'll head for Bourbon Street."

BOTH FIGHTING FOR PRIDE

Cadets, Middies Prepared To Do Battle

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Army and Navy meet Saturday in their 72nd football battle with nothing at stake but the pride of the Cadets from West Point and the Midshipmen from Anapolis. napolis.

Army coach Tom Cahill may have summed it up best earlier this week when he said, "it should be a typical Army-Navy game. The team that's the most charged up should be the winner."

Cahill cautioned, however, that this game is emotionally different from most other games.

"There is no problem getting them up," observed the Army coach. "the problem is keeping them in proper focus. I don't want to get them up Thursday or Sunday, but around 1 p.m. Saturday. That's what we're shooting for."

The emotional charge very well could make the difference as the two teams approach the game evenly matched in personnel. Army's 5-4 record is better than Navy's 3-7, but the Middies have been improving, holding Notre Dame to 21 points and beating Syracuse.

Army and Navy are no longer the powerhouses of the East, but the usual 100,000 fans are expected at John F. Kennedy Stadium for the colorful parade of Cadets and Middies. Army leads in the series 34-31 with 6 ties. Navy won two of the last three, including last year's 11-7 thriller.

Navy coach Rick Forzano, whose contract expires this season, believes his program at Annapolis has turned the corner and is ready for better things.

"We're a much better team than a year ago," Forzano contends. "We're still a young team, but we get a little more experience each time out. We're a different team in that we're able to move the ball somewhat, able to sustain some drives, and out defense is better."

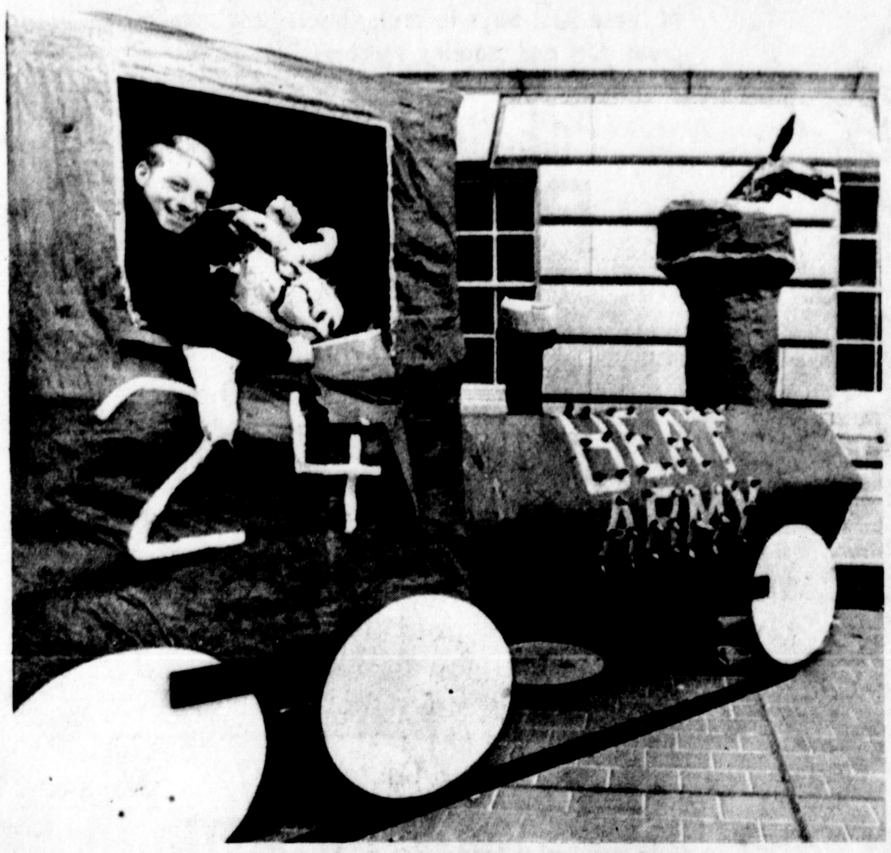

Forzano is 1-1 in his two games against Army, and a victory Saturday wouldn't hurt his chances of being retained as head coach. Cahill-coached Army teams are 3-2 with the Middies.

Navy is expected to start with Fred Stuvak at quarterback in their I formation offense, featuring wide flankers and the threat of passes to sophomore Larry Van Loan, the best Middies' receiver in many years. Sophomore Dan Howard and junior Andy Pease are Navy's top running backs. The offense has scored only 122 points, while an overworked defense has given up 308.

The Middies defeated Virginia, Duke and Syracuse and lost to fifth-ranked Penn State, Boston College, fourth-ranked Michigan, Pittsburgh, Miami, Notre Dame and Georgia Tech.

Army's offense rests on the arm and play selection of a sophomore quarterback, Kingsley Fink, who won the job from veteran Dick Atha. Fink completed 56 of 134 passes, 6 for touchdowns. He passes mostly to split end John Simar, 22 catches and 3 Tds, and fullback Ed Francis, 21 catches. Halfback Ray Ritacco is the Cadet's leading rusher, 425 yards and a 3.7 average. The offense has scored 122 points, while the defense has given up 183.

Army needs a victory to post a winning season, already having defeated Georgia Tech, Missouri, Virginia, Rutgers and Pittsburgh. The Cadets lost to Rose Bowl bound Stanford, Penn State, Air Force, and Miami. If you're looking for a comparative basis, both Army and Navy faced Virginia, Penn State, Miami, Georgia Tech and Pittsburgh. Both lost to Penn State and Miami, both beat Virginia, Army defeated Georgia Tech and Pitt, while Navy lost to these two.

NAVAL LOCOMOTION

While the Nebraska-Oklahoma football game may have had most football fans buzzing Thanksgiving Day, today's Army-Navy battle, the 72nd in this classic series, is still the big thing at the U.S. Naval Academy. Sitting with the Army mile in the "Beat Army Locomotive" is Navy defensive end Al Mayfield. The Army mule also sticks his head out of the smoke stack.

Alabama Out To Contain Sullivan And Auburn Crew

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — Third-ranked Alabama, holding the key to a possible dream game for the Orange Bowl, tangles with Heisman Trophy winner Pat Sullivan and the No. 5 Auburn Tigers Saturday when the two Southeastern Conference undefeated giants collide in a nationally televised game (ABC).

Coach Paul "Bear" Bryant's Crimson Tide, three-time national champions, face top-ranked Nebraska in the Orange Bowl on New Year's night and probably would set up a match of the Nos. 1 and 2 teams with a victory.

Nebraska, unbeaten in 30 games, trimmed second-ranked Oklahoma 35-31 Thanksgiving Day. The Sooners will met Auburn, winner of 11 straight, in the Sugar Bowl.

Sullivan, the 190-pound strong-armed quarterback, never has lost to the Crimson Tide, but the oddsmakers have established Alabama a four-point favorite.

A sellout crowd of more than 70,000 is expected for the 4:05 p.m. EST kickoff in Legion Field, with millions more catching the action via television.

Alabama has been plagued by injuries to star halfback Johnny Musso and defensive tackle Jeff Beard, but Bryant says "everyone will play, although I don't know how long or how effectively."

The battle for the SEC championship got an unneeded boost Thursday night when the Downtown Athletic Club of New York named Sullivan the Heisman Trophy winner, emblematic of college football's top player.

The game already was being billed as the biggest in Southern football history, marking the first time Dixie teams with perfect records had met in a season finale.

Alabama 10-0, is the second straight undefeated foe for the Tigers. Sullivan rifled four touchdown passes two weeks ago when the Tigers smacked 9-0 Georgia 35-20.

"Sullivan, who led the nation in total offense last year, has guided Auburn to a 25-4 regular season record during his career. He currently ranks third in passing, having completed 148 of 254 attempts for 1,891 yards and 20 touchdowns. He is fourth in total offense, averaging 219.7 yards per game.

One of Sullivan's calls of congratulations Thursday night came from Musso, who finished fourth in the voting. The two SEC record-holders were pals when they attended the same elementary school in Birmingham, and they have remained friends.

Cards Activate 2 For Giants Game

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The St. Louis Cardinals of the National Football League activated two defensive players and placed two others on the inactive roster Friday.

The Cardinals said linebacker Terry Miller and defensive back Tom Longo had been activated from the taxi squad.

Defensive Tackle Fred Heron, out last week with a knee injury, and linebacker Mike McGill, who has missed three games because of a shoulder bruise, were inactivated.

Longo, added to the St. Louis roster Tuesday, played with the New York Giants earlier this season. The Cardinals meet the Giants Sunday.

Namath Might Return To Lineup Against Frisco

Joe Namath won't be in any playoffs this season but he could be involved in a big game Sunday—a big one for the San Francisco 49ers.

Namath might return to action for the first time since being injured in pre-season play when the Jets, 4-6, play host to the 49ers who could take over first place in the Western Division of the National Football League's National Conference.

San Francisco has a 6-4 record compared to a 6-4-1 mark for Los Angeles which lost 28-21 to Dallas Thursday.

In other Sunday games, Atlanta, 5-4-1, is at Minnesota, 8-2-0; Washington, 6-3-1, at Philadelphia, 3-6-1; Baltimore, 7-3-0, at Oakland, 7-1-2; Cleveland, 5-5-0, at Houston, 1-8-1; Denver, 2-7-1; at Pittsburgh, 5-5-0; at San Diego, 4-6-); at Cincinnati; 3-7-0; New Orleans, 3-5-2, Green Bay, 3-6-1, at Milwaukee; New England, 4-6-0, at Buffalo, 0-10-0, and St. Louis, 3-7-0, at New York Giants, 4-6-0.

Monday night's nationally televised game has Chicago, 6-4-0, at Miami, 8-1-1.

San Francisco will be trying to snap a two-game losing streak against an injury-plagued Jet team that upset Kansas City and narrowly missed upsetting Baltimore.

"I want to play and I will play if I can do the job," Namath said of his status for the game. Weather conditions will play an important part in Namath's decision to play.

Atlanta would stay right in the thick of the National West race with the 49ers and Los Angeles by beating Minnesota which needs a victory to move 1½ games ahead of Detroit in the National Central. Detroit beat Kansas City 32-21 Thursday.

Atlanta will be counting on Bob Berry's passing a good running attack against the NFL's toughest defense.

Struggling Washington needs to beat Philadelphia to move again to within a half game of Dallas in the National East. Neither Billy Kilmer nor Sonny Jurgensen was able to get the Redskins on the scoreboard when they were knocked out of first place by Dallas last Sunday. Philadelphia, (3-6-1) won three and tied Washington in its last five games.

Baltimore will take its strong running game and rugged defense into Oakland, needing a victory to stay in the American East race with Miami, which leads the Colts by 1½ games and is favored to make Chicago its eighth straight victim Monday night.

Oakland, led by the passing combination of Daryle Lamonica and Fred Belitnikof, has a chance to open a 1½-game margin over Kansas City in the American West.

New Irish Coach, But No Austin Carr

Can a young man from the big city find happiness in a small town? Basketball Coach Dick Phelps finds out this season at Notre Dame.

After a blockbuster year in New York with Fordham, the Digger has moved to new digs at South Bend, Ind. And while inheriting a major independent club, he also inherits major headaches.

The most formidable problem is the Irish's schedule, one of the country's toughest. Another is the loss of talent—high-scoring Austin Carr is gone and captain Doug Gemmell and brilliant John Shumate have been lost for the season because of injury and illness.

But Fordham also had troubles before this ultra-successful leader took over in 1970. He built a miracle team in one year and is optimistic of molding another winner at Notre Dame "where I always wanted to coach."

It won't be easy. Phelps has only one letterman back from last year's 21-9 team which whipped national champion UCLA. John Egart returns in the backcourt. Bob Valibus, a hot sophomore prospect, is another bright note.

Sure to give Notre Dame a pain in the Midwest is Marquette, perhaps the country's top independent coached by slick Al McGuire and led by Super Center Jim Chones, a 6-11 muscleman.

"Chones gets better everytime he steps on the floor," says McGuire, whose optimism of this year's team bodes no good for the opposition. McGuire has never been overly boastful and even toned down last year's extraordinary 28-1 team.

Another Midwest bully will be Cincinnati, powered by 6-5 Lloyd Batts.

Louisville and Memphis State appear to be the hot picks in the Missouri Valley Conference. Coach Dennis Crum, a former U UCLA assistant, hopes to bring the Bruins' winning glamor to Louisville, where eight of last year's top nine players return from a 20-game-winning team. Memphis State, 18-8 last year, takes aim at the MVC crown with four returning front-liners.

Houston's rebuilding season last year, which wasn't bad with a 22-7 record, has resulted in a powerful Southwest independent. Dwight Davis, the Cougars' 6-7 star, leads a batch of fast-draw returnees. Donnell Hayes, a 6-2 guard, has been billed as one of the most exciting players in Houston history—not bad considering Elvin Hayes of a few seasons ago and Davis.

Southern Methodist and Texas Christian, teams which each lost a key player, will probably slug it out for the Southwest Conference title. Both have enough talent to overmatch the field.

Four starters return to Oklahoma, making the strong Sooners a good choice to win the Big Eight.

76ers Acquire Seattle's Rule

SEATTLE (AP) — The second largest home crowd in Seattle history chanted, "We want Rule," but when the National Basketball Association game was over Thursday night, center Bob Rule was on his way to Philadelphia.

The 6-foot-9 center didn't leave the bench despite the insistence of the 13,170 fans. "Right there I figured something was up," he said later. "I thought, 'Where am I going?'"

Seattle Super Sonics general manager Bob Houbregs traded Rule to the 86ers for second-round draft choices next year and in 1974 and an undisclosed amount of cash.

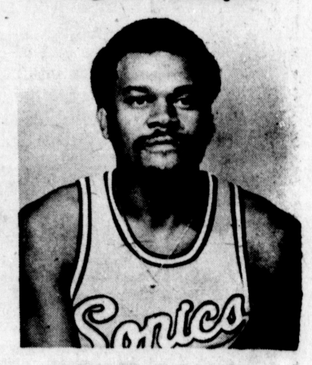

Rule, the last of the original Sonics, snapped an Achilles tendon twice last year. He has not started this season but has played as a reserve. Don Smith and Pete Cross have alternated starting at the center spot.

Rule, who admitted he felt "let down" by the trade, said, "It's been hard sitting on the bench. But I'm glad to have the opportunity to show what I can do. After talking to the man in Philly, I feel I'll get a good shot right into the starting lineup."

Houbregs said there wasn't enough time to allow Rule to produce. "It is possible Rule could do very well in Philadelphia," he conceded.

Rule has played 243 minutes in 16 games this season and was shooting 36 per cent from the field and 53 per cent from the foul line.

A second-round draft choice from Colorado State, Rule averaged 22.3 points in his five-year Sonic career. He holds the Seattle one-game scoring record of 49 points, which he set in 1969 against Philadelphia. —

NBA HIGHLIGHTS

Bucks Blast Portland

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Kareem Jabbar scored 33 points and Bob Dandridge netted 21 Friday night, leading the Milwaukee Bucks to a 120-105 National Basketball Association victory over the Portland Trailblazers.

Lucius Allen and Greg Smith each scored 15 for the Bucks, now 20-3 on the season and with a 24-game home winning streak dating to Jan. 22. Rookie Sidney Wicks scored 30 to lead Portland, now 3-17.

Wicks, after a cold first half, poured in 16 points in the third quarter but Milwaukee widened its lead to 95-75 going into the last 12 minutes.

Westminster Enters Semis

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Defending champion Westminster College takes a 23-game winning streak into its NAIA Division II semi final game Saturday against Carthage College in Kenosha, Wis.

Meanwhile, Montana Tech, 9-1, travels to California Lutheran, 5-0-2, for the other semi-final game Saturday.

Located in New Wilmington, Pa., Westminster is 9-0 on the season and ranked No. 1 in the division poll.

The Titans of Coach Dr. Harold Burry won the title last year with a 21-16 victory over Anderson College of Indiana.

This season, Westminster has scored an average of 32 points per game, while surrendering 7.6. Its closest victory was a 13-10 decision over Heidelberg.

Junior quarterback Gene McNamara is the offensive leader with 14 touchdown passes and an average of 153 yards passing per game.

Joe Veres is the top ground gainer with 108 yards per game and an average of close to five yards per carry.

The prime receiver is flanker Roger Price with 25 receptions for 432 yards and nine touchdowns.

Carthage, 9-0, boasts two of the most productive runners in the NAIAM, Curt Whipple and Craig Holt, who have rushed for over 110 yards each per game.

Chicago Bullish On Golden State

CHICAGO (AP) — Bob Love, Chet Walker and Jerry Sloan, interchanging at guard and forward, combined for 67 points Friday night to lead Chicago to a 121-89 victory over Golden State, the Bulls' seventh straight National Basketball Association victory.

Carr Hits 30 In Cavs Win

CLEVELAND (AP) — Austin Carr poured in 30 points Friday lead the Cleveland Cavaliers to their second consecutive victory and a new team scoring record in a 128-114 triumph over the Cincinnati Royal.

Cleveland took the lead midway through the second quarter, shot 49 per cent for the game and got balanced scoring to offset 33-point performances by the Royals' Jim Fox and Nate Archibald.

John Johnson collected 19 for the Cavs, Bobby Smith 18, and Butch Beard and Walt Wesley 17. Dave Sorenson came off the bench late in the third quarter to score 14 points.

Carr was playing in just his fifth game of the season, having been sidelined with a broken bone in his right foot. The former Notre Dame All-American has now pumped in 19, 22 and 30 points in the three games he has started.

Knicks Turn Back Celtics, 104-89

BOSTON (AP) — The New York Knicks, led by Walt Frazier and Jerry Lucas, spurted to a 22-point first half lead and then threw up a tight defense Friday night in a 104-89 National Basketball Association victory over the Boston Celtics before a crowd of 15,315, the largest pro turnout in Garden history.

Frazier scored 11 points and Lucas eight in a surge which carried the Knicks to a 43-21 lead early in the second period. The Celtics fought back, closing to within six points, 64-58, in the third period. But Bill Bradley scored a field goal, Frazier cashed a free throw and Dave DeBusschere added a basket to pull the Knicks out of danger.

New York was led by Frazier with 25 points. Lucas with 24 and DeBusschere with 23.

John Havlicek and Jo Jo White paced the Celtics with 28 and 26 points, respectively.

Dragon Basketball Clinic Wednesday

Warren High School's basketball team, in conjunction with the Sports Boosters, will present a clinic Wednesday evening at 7 p.m. in the high school gym.

Head Coach Ed McGlumphy will introduce members of the varsity, junior varsity and freshmen squads and have the teams run through play patterns. Fundamentals and rules of the game will also be discussed.

The public is invited to attend the free clinic, and refreshments will be served by the Boosters following.

Carlson Crashes Lanes For Big 656

Arvid Carlson rolled a 656 series Friday night to lead all area bowlers as Riverside Lanes picked up both high single and series. Carlson, bowling in the Nite Owls league threw a 230 for his high single.

Another Nite Owl, Phil Lauffenburger, flipped high single for the evening with a 264.

In Wednesday night action, Bill Pollard from Sugar Bowl Lanes, captured the high series with a 263-623.

WPIAL Grid Dean Dies Of Heart Attack

ALIQUIPPA, Pa. (AP) —Carl Aschman, often referred to as the "dean of WPIAL football coaches," has died of an apparent heart attack at his home here. He was 68.

Aschman coached at Aliquippa High School from 1941 until his retirement in 1965. His teams compiled a 189-88-10 record and won three WPIAL titles.

Aschman died Thursday.

Safety Stressed During Hunting

The Pennsylvania Game Commission this week again stressed the need for safety precautions during the upcoming deer hunting seasons.

Although chances of being involved in an accident are far fewer for the man in the woods with a gun than for the person out for an afternoon picnic, there is still a need for all hunters to take every safety precaution possible during deer seasons when long-range rifles are being used by most sportsmen.

Perhaps the most important step that can be taken toward the prevention of hunting accidents during the deer seasons is to wear fluorescent orange clothing, especially a cap and a vest. Unparalleled safety records are being compiled in states where wearing of this color while hunting is required by law.

A sportsman never forgets for one instant where the muzzle of his gun is pointed, and a gun should never be aimed at anything the hunter wouldn't want to shoot.

The muzzle must be free from obstructions at all times — something to be remembered when a hunter encounters snow or mud.

Rifle scopes can become fogged in the rain or snow, and need constant attention during inclement weather.

One of the most dangerous hunters is the one who fails to keep his safe "on" at all times except while firing at a legal target. Another dangerous practice is to use a rifle scope to scan surroundings. The use of binoculars is strongly recommended instead.

Every year somebody is injured or killed while "cleaning" a gun. This should never happen. Always, the first step to take after picking up a firearm, for whatever reason, is to open the action and remove any ammunition that may be in the chamber or magazine. If this would be done, all such accidents would be eliminated.

Numerous accidents occur when hunters load or unload their guns in the presence of others. Always point the gun away from other persons and in a safe direction when loading or unloading.

In addition, there are those who persist in leaning a loaded gun against trees, cars, etc. Every year, some of them later wonder why the gun "went off" when it fell.

Accidents involving ricochetting bullets are not as common as generally suspected, but they do occur. A hunter should always be certain that it is safe to fire into the background in case the bullet misses the intended target.

Finally, be absolutely certain of the target itself. Every year some hunter fires at a white handkerchief that resembles the white tail of a deer, or at a piece of brown or khaki-colored clothing that resembles a deer hide.

Vehicles Barred From Game Lands

Hunters who have questioned whether or not it is possible to use vehicles on State Game Lands during the deer season are advised by the Game Commission that it is not permissible, except in special instances.

Under rules and regulations of the commission governing State Game Lands, driving upon State Game Lands in vehicles of any description excepting by way of the roads which have been declared open and are open to the public for vehicular traffic shall be prohibited.

With the proliferation of all-terrain type vehicles, motor scooters, motorbikes, jeep-type equipment, etc., some may have considered use of one or more of these vehicles as a means of crossing Game Lands.

They are advised that to do so is unlawful.

"TODAY I AM A MAN."

Forest County Expecting Exceptional Buck Harvest

An exceptionally good harvest of six and eight-point bucks is anticipated this year in western Forest County, as hunters in the Marienville area may have to be satisfied with smaller deer. There is, however, ample supply of deer throughout the county, game protectors report.

Ernie Taylor, on German Hill at Tionesta, and George 'Moose' Miller in Marienville made the comments as they were preparing Friday for the annual influx of some 30,000 hunters to the state's smallest county (280,000 acres) populated by less than 5,000 persons.

Historically, more deer have been taken per square mile from Forest County than any other county in the state. Likewise, there have been more hunters per square mile.

There are over 7,000 camps, cottages and summer residences in the county.

Before the vast system of logging roads was created by the Allegheny National Forest, which owns more than 40 per cent of the county's 245,000 acres of commercial forest land, hunting was heavily concentrated in the Marienville, Tionesta and Kellettville areas. Today, the deer population and the hunter population is fairly evenly distributed, according to the game commission spokesmen.

Taylor said that although he has only been assigned to his part of the county since April, he is rapidly becoming acquainted with his area with the help of nine experienced deputies. These deputies will be in the field with him throughout the hunting season.

He said that from personal observation and from field reports from his deputies he feels there is an exceptionally good herd of large deer with six to eight points.

Taylor said he didn't expect a great number of trophy racks to appear in his area, except from the outer fringes near the Clarion County line. A number of large farm deer are harvested annually in the Newmansville, Red Brush, Leeper area.

One tract of land in the Tionesta area apparently won't be open to hunters this year. The game protector said signs have been posted around the 7500-acre Taylor Estate. In years past, hunting was permitted there by permit obtained from the Tionesta Volunteer Firemen.

Miller said that although there is a more than ample supply of deer in his territory, he could not be as optimistic about rack size as Taylor.

He cautioned hunters who venture forth in the Buzzard Swamp area or the Marienville Flats to carry a compass and to use it. With the advent of forest roads, he said, the problem of getting lost is not as great. Whereas years ago, a hunter could walk 20-30 miles without crossing a road; today, he will find a road or a pipeline in less than five miles. It is easy to get turned around on the flats, he said, where landmarks are difficult to sight.

Prior to the forest roads, traffic prior to the first day was jammed along Rt. 66 (then Rt. 68) for miles north and south of Marienville.

Both game protectors reported what may be a record bear kill—eight legal bear in each section. Miller's heaviest was 405 lbs., Taylor's, 203.

Taylor reported that two hunters turned in cub bears they had shot.

Miller said a hunter using a crossbow downed a bear sometime Sunday after dark. It was found dead Monday morning with an arrow in its neck.

Both game protectors were optimistic about the success of last minute turkey hunters. Portions of Taylor's territory west of the Allegheny River, however, is now closed to turkey hunting.

Buck Picture Policy

Monday, Nov. 29, is the first day of the annual two-week antlered deer season, and hundreds of proud hunters will be returning from the woodlands anxious to show the results of their prowess.

The Times-Mirror and Observer will once again publish photos of bucks taken. All photos must be taken at the newspaper office, Market st. and Pennsylvania ave. w., and will be taken as a photographer is available.

Photos will be taken of:

—all deer with racks of eight points or better;

—all deer taken by youngsters aged 12 or 13;

—all deer taken by women;

—all albino deer.

In addition, we will publish a list of successful hunters whose deer do not meet the requirements for a photo.

All deer for photos must be brought to the newspaper office; all hunter reports should be telephoned in to the sports desk between 7:30 and 9 p.m. each night.

Only One Of Every Six Hunters Will Down Their Deer This Year

In addition to the army of visiting hunters taking to the woodlands of the Warren area for the opening of the buck season on Monday, another contingent of local hunters numbering around 7,000, if the average holds, will be treking to their "happy hunting grounds" in nearby forests.

Of these, again if the average holds, one out of six will find the success they seek, and one out of 16 will kill a buck of trophy proportions.

While most of the hunting pressures will be applied to the more mountainous sections of the county, some of the best hunting to be had will be in the rural areas where nearby farmers fields supply a wealth of forage for the deer and wood plots supply the required cover. cover.

Almost all of the lands of the Allegheny National Forest show signs of a sizeable deer population, especially in the areas where clearcutting of timber sales operations have provided conditions highly attractive to deer.

Russ Hill, game management specialist with the forest staff, as well as local game protectors Dave Titus and Don Parr, have reported an abundance of mast in the form of white oak and rock oak acorns have also concentrated the deer in areas where these species are predominate.

Due to the harshness of the past winter, racks may be on the small side according to these game specialists as the herd came out of the severe weather in less than normal condition. Regaining their strength required most of the summer with little excess energy being available for horn growth.

However, some sizeable racks have been sighted in the Scandia and Grand Valley sections, and to a lesser extent in some of the other rural areas. Seemingly, the deer wintered better in these locations.

And, if the record holds, Warren County hunters can again expect to make a kill that will rank the county in a fifth or sixth place statewide for the number of bucks killed. For the first time in its history, the county reached such recognition last year.

The tracking snow presently covering the ground should contribute towards reaching an all-time high this year in the harvest of bucks, as well as aid in the sighting of horns by the hunter.

Buck season will run from Monday, November 29, through Saturday, December 11. The antlerless season will follow on Monday and Tuesday, December 13 and 14.

Roster Required Of All Hunters Working In Parties Over Five

Bear and deer hunters are reminded that rosters must be maintained if five or more persons hunt together or in any manner cooperate with others while hunting big game.

On the rosters must be listed the names, addresses, current hunting license numbers, dates of arrival and departure and makes and calibers of guns of all members of the party, and species of big game killed and the sex, estimated weight and date killed.

A copy of the roster must be posted at the headquarters of the party, and the original roster sheet must be carried by the captain of the party. The headquarters roster must be posted for 30 days following the close of the season.

Roster forms are available from license issuing agents, sporting goods dealers, Game Commission personnel, etc.

Bear and deer hunters may use any manually operated rifle, shotgun or revolver that fires expanding-type, single-projectile ammunition (except 22 or 25 caliber rimfires, which are illegal), or the long bow with arrows. There is one exception to the foregoing: in the Special Regulations Area around Philadelphia, only shotguns loaded with buckshot or the long bow and arrows may be used, and autoloading shotguns are legal.

No group hunting deer together or in unison or as a party shall consist of more than 25 persons.

Bear and deer hunters are reminded that they must detach the big game tag supplied with the hunting license, fill it out, and attach the tag to the animal within one hour after the animal is killed, and before the carcass is moved from the spot where it fell.

Successful bear and deer hunters are also required to report their kills to the Game Commission at Harrisburg within five days after the close of the season in which the big game animal was taken.

The big game kill report card is part of the hunting license, and should simply be detached, filled out and dropped in a mail box. Postage on the report card will be paid by the Game Commission.

Since most bear hunters also hunt deer, the Commission urges that anyone killing a bear make out a duplicate tag and report card, which are legal, saving the regular big game tag and report card supplied with the license for use during the deer season.

Mark Your Trail, Don't Get Lost

Hey, Mr. Hunter! Why get lost?

Yes, getting lost presents a problem each deer season as rescue organizations are called out to locate some hunter who knew the area he was hunting "like the back of his hand." It's not a pleasant experience for either the hunter or the persons who spend hours under adverse conditions making the search.

And getting lost is so unnecessary.

While a compass can be a valuable aid to the person experienced with its use, it can be a rather confusing item to those failing to completely understand its use.

A better system for the novice or person unfamiliar with the territory being hunted is to carry a yellow or orange marking pencil. This can be used to mark rocks and tree trunks as the hunt progresses, then furnish the means of backtracking at day's end.

And, it might be added, the experienced hunter may save himself a miserable night in the woods by laying aside his pride and using this system.

Small Game Season Closes Saturday

The Game Commission reminds sportsmen that the small game hunting season ends today, Saturday, Nov. 27.

Turkeys in northcentral Pennsylvania, squirrels, grouse, rabbits, pheasants and quail may be taken until sunset.

Bureau Urges Driving Care

Hunters are urged by the Game Commission to be a little more thoughtful when driving and parking their vehicles.

Most sportsmen are careful, but a small minority of thoughtless drivers can create major problems and produce an unfavorable image for all hunters in the mind of the general public.

Random Shooting Unlawful During Big Game Seasons

Hunters are reminded that they may not shoot at random during the big game seasons.

It is unlawful, during bear and deer seasons, to shoot at any mark or target other than legal birds or animals, except at a properly constructed target or a dead tree within 200 yards of the hunting camp or headquarters of the shooter.

Hunters are also warned that it is unlawful to fire at public utility poles, tranformers, insulators, traffic or other signs, warning posters, etc.

SUCCESSFUL HUNT

Right on Time! Gordon Frailey (left) of Frailey's Barber Shop, and Joe Morrison (right) of 107 6th Street each got their prize gobbler on Thanksgiving morning while hunting somewhere in the National Forest. Frailey's weighed in at 21½ lbs. while Morrison's stood at 19 lbs., and marked the third turkey he has gotten in four years. Pictured in the middle is John Backstrom, a hunting companion.

GOOD SHOT

Bob Jones picked up this bird while hunting in the Hemlock area on Thursday. A 14 pounder, the turkey was brought down when Jones shot it on the wing.

New Phone Centers For Hunters

Two new special telephone centers will be established this year to serve hunters who will pour into Forest County for the first part of Pennsylvania's antlered deer season.

These centers will be in addition to two centers which have been in operation in Coudersport and Galeton for the past six years. The Potter County telephone centers will be operated again in 1971.

The new Forest County phone centers will be in Tionesta and in Marienville. The Tionesta phones will be at the Knotty Pine Restaurant on Main Street, and in Marienville the phones will be located in the Snyder Construction Company on East Spruce Street.

Because of facilities limitations, all calls from the Forest County communications centers this year must be collect or credit card.

The Coudersport communications center will be in the Potter County Garage. The Galeton center will be in the Volunteer Ambulance Hall. Each of these centers can handle up to 20 calls simultaneously, and each has become a place where hunters gather, warm up and exchange stories.

All four communications centers will operate from 2 to 10 p.m. daily from Sunday, Nov. 28, through Wednesday, Dec. 1.

When the centers first went into operation in Potter County, about 1,000 calls were handled in a four-day period. This year, about 4,000 calls are expected.

Hunters no longer have to wait in long lines, often in subfreezing temperatures.

As in past years, the telephone company will distribute thousands of practice targets. Each cautions against shooting utility lines and possibly cutting off services for thousands of persons. Hunters are showing more awareness of this danger, and damage to the facilities of utilities has lessened.

Congress May Change Phase 2 With Amendment

By Stanley L. Williams
Congressional Quarterly

WASHINGTON—As Phase Two of President Nixon's new economic policy got under way in an aura of confusion and controversy, Congress prepared to legislate changes in the program.

The prospect for the post-freeze phase remained unclear after the first round of decisions on guidelines and regulations as:

+ Organized labor threatened to withhold its cooperation—if not walk out—from the program.

+ The Pay Board, in its first review of a major wage contract, approved pay raises far beyond its own general guideline of 5.5 percent per year.

Changes from Congress

Congress appears ready to enact legislation requiring changes in the policy established by the Pay Board and in the stabilization program set up by the President.

Organized labor, one of the three interests represented on the Pay Board, was outvoted by the business and public members on the issues of wage guidelines, recognition of existing contracts and retroactive payment of scheduled wage increases deferred by the wage-price freeze.

Congress, in consideration of bills to amend the Economic Stabilization Act, seems on the verge of overruling the board and settling the contract and retroactivity issues on a basis more to labor's liking. The Act is the President's statutory authority for his new economic policy.

House and Senate Bills

Both the House and Senate bills would validate existing contracts and require retroactive payment of deferred raises in most cases. The Senate bill would authorize the President or his agent—the Pay Board—to disapprove such raises if they were "unreasonably inconsistent" with the general guidelines.

The House bill is stronger and less to the Administration's taste. It would permit disallowance of a raise only if it was "grossly disproportionate" to the guidelines.

Both bills would give the President the authority he asked to control interest rates. But the House bill goes farther: it defines interest to include all finance and related charges and requires control of interest rates whenever wages and prices are regulated.

Both bills contain other amendments to the Stabilization Act, some of which the President asked for and some going beyond President Nixon's requests.

AFL-CIO Convention Stand

At its national convention in Miami the AFL-CIO reacted to labor's defeat on the Pay Board by urging its members to strike if necessary to win observance of their contracts. The delegates urged their representatives not to cooperate in administration of Pay board decisions until labor's aims were achieved.

They charged their representatives to remain on the board only as long as there was reasonable hope of attaining their goals.

Most observers believe labor is unlikely to leave the Pay Board, because walking out would give Nixon an issue—the charge that labor had sabotaged the stabilization program. Further, the President might re-impose the freeze if labor refused to cooperate with his program.

Not So Far Apart

Another reason is that the positions of labor and the board are not as far apart as the rhetoric of labor chieftains would indicate.

The board has approved the first-year provisions of the coal strike settlement reached on the eve of Phase Two. The new agreement provides pay raises of almost 17 percent in the first year.

It is expected to result in an increase of 8 percent or more in the price of soft coal.

There was little actual choice in the matter, since the miners were likely to strike again if their settlement was disapproved. The board will have no greater choice on several other major contracts which will come to it before the end of the year.

IN MEMORIAM
In memory of RHEA A. BRENNAN who passed away November 27th, 1962.

No morning dawns, no night returns
But that we think of you;
Those left behind are very good
But none replaces you.
It seems so strange the ones we need
And those we love the best;
Are the ones God called away
And took them home to rest.
But everytime we think of you
We seem to hear God say;
Have faith and trust my promise
You'll meet again some day.
Sadly missed by

IN MEMORIAM
In loving memory of JOSEPH A. HANNAH who passed away Nov. 28th, 1970.

Your gentle face & patient smile,
With sadness we recall,
You had a kindly word for each,
And died beloved by all.
We miss you now, our hearts are sore,
As time goes by, we miss you more,
Your loving smile, your gentle face,
No one can fill your vacant place.
Sadly missed by Wife, children mother & family.

Stans Discusses Soviet-American Economic Pact

MOSCOW (AP) — Secretary of Commerce Maurice H. Stans has been talking trade with the Russians as a first step toward a possible Soviet-American economic agreement that would crown President Nixon's state visit to the Soviet Union next May.

This possibility became apparent Friday as more details of Stans' discussions with Soviet officials became available. Informed sources reported the talks were progressing to the satisfaction of both sides.

As the first secretary of commerce ever to visit Soviet Russia, Stans officially is charged with exploring the possibilities of developing trade and economic cooperation with the Russians.

And at the end of a week, one source could describe what he said was a strong feeling of "optimism and expectation on both sides."

Other sources said the two sides were talking in terms of a tenfold increase in their trade. That would mean a billion dollar annual bilateral trade turnover by the mid-1970s, pushing the United States to the head of the line as Russia's main capitalist trading partner.

It was also learned that Nixo administration officials were looking forward to even further expansion of trade so that bilateral commerce would reach a level of $5 billion by the end of the decade. The Soviet Union's entire trade with the capitalist world was $5.17 billion last year.

There were several signs that a Soviet-American economic agreement formalizing these developments was under consideration, and that the time for its unveiling would be the Nixon visit.

The last Soviet-American trade agreement was concluded with an exchange of notes July 12, 1935. It went into force after more than 18 months of difficult negotiations.

LAST DAY

Among the vacationing students that helped move the collected glass at the YMCA around to the post office side of the building Friday were Stacy Wolfe, left, and Tim Swift. The glass is picked up there and trucked to a Marienville plant where it is reprocessed. The machine at right is an electric glass crusher. Today is the last day of the recycling program at the "Y". It is expected to resume again once nice weather returns. (Photo by Mansfield)

Peking Accuses Russia Of 'Social-Imperalism'

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Communist China lashed out at the Soviet Union Friday, accusing the Russians of "social-imperialism" and of encouraging India to launch "bare-faced aggression against Pakistan."

Deputy Foreign Minister Chiao Kuan-hua addressed the 131-nation General Assembly shortly after the United States had joined Peking in urging that a Soviet plan for a world disarmament conference be shelved.

Soviet Ambassador Jacob A. Malik struck back with charges that Peking had developed as its theme an attack on the superpowers—the Soviet Union and the United States—while posing as a defender of the smaller countries.

In a speech reminiscent the worst days of the cold war, Chiao noted that Malik on Wednesday had spoken of a Chinese-American "duet of negativism" because of their opposition to the proposed arms conference.

"There are cheap and demogogic words, which are not worth refuting," Chiao asserted. "Who, after all, is singing a duet with U.S. imperialism?"

He said Soviet forces were stationed in Mongolia, to the north of China, while the United States maintains military bases in Japan.

"Is this not a kind of duet? he asked.

Chiao said China has had long experience with Soviet chauvinism and social-imperialism.

Chiao said he would not participate in the voting on the Soviet proposal "and will assume no obligation as a result of the voting."

Ambassador Christopher H. Phillips told the assembly the question of a world arms conference should be approached "in a deliberate and cautious manner" and that a furtehr exchange of views is needed before a decision is taken.

He expressed doubts about the possible results of discussions in a world-wide forum, as well as the need for additional machinery. He quoted Secretary of State William P. Rogers as saying grandiose schemes "tend to generate many words and few results."

Phillips proposed that the question of a world disarmament conference be placed on the agenda of the 1972 session of the assembly. This, he said, "would enable all interested governments during the coming year to consider the many suggestions and observations" made during the current debate.

Red China's chief delegate, Deputy Foreign Minister Chiao Kuan-hua, in a speech on Wednesday called on the assembly not to vote on the Soviet proposal at this time

Wanda Williams New Head Of 4-H Council

The Warren County 4-H Teen Council began in October, 1971-72 year with an election of officers, who has been named as follows: Wanda Williams, president; Sue Kyzma, vice president; Viv Borland, secretary; Sam Borland, treasurer; Becky Slocum and Bill Persche, social chairman; Carol Uhlig and Ken Dundon, news reporters.

Members discussed plans for the Beef Bar B-Q which was held at the Warren County Fairgrounds and was attended by 4-H teen leaders, their parents, 4-H leaders and several county officials.

Following the meal, Teen Council members presented a program of skits and a square dance rounded out the evening affair.

The Council's second meeting was held Nov. 8 at the county court house and it was decided to hold the December meeting at the No-Bar Riding Club at 8 p.m. on the 13th. Officers are requested to come about 15-minutes early to discuss matters concerning the meeting.

The second meeting marked the beginning of the correspondence course on parliamentary procedure. Five meetings will be concerned with the lessons, films and question and answer periods between members and Daryl Heasly of Penn State.

All members are reminded to bring their course books to the next meeting.

Former Head Of Crime Empire Dies In Exile

ANCONA, Italy (AP) — Joe Adonis, who headed a multimillion-dollar crime empire on the U.S. East Coast before his deportation in 1956, died Friday in lonely exile here. He was 69.

Four months ago Italian authorities banished him from his plush Milan apartment to the tiny village of Serra de Conti, near the Adriatic Coast city on the ground that he still had underworld connections. Adonis said the exile "will kill me."

On Tuesday night, the once-powerful gambling lord was hospitalized with heart and lung complications following a bout with pneumonia.

Until 1951, the only conviction Adonis had on his criminal record was one count of disorderly conduct, for which he paid a $25 fine.

But during the 1951 hearings of the late Sen. Estes Kefauver's Senate crime committee, Adonis was described as a former chief of Murder, Inc., the kill-to-order gang of the 1930s.

Although there was some disagreement over where Adonis was born—in Italy or the United States—he grew up in one of the worst slums of Brooklyn and never got as far as high school.

Between 1926 and 1940 he was arrested six times on charges ranging from grand larceny to assault, but only the disorderly conduct count stuck, and 1944 saw Adonis living in a luxurious $100,000 home in New Jersey with his wife and four children. There he invested in several legitimate businesses.

But the government had begun to take an interest in his gambling connections, and at the hearings Kefauver said he was involved with a $20-million crime syndicate with gambling outlets in major East Coast cities.

Finally in 1951, Adonis was charged with operating a $1-million dice gambling ring in Bergen County, N.J. He pleaded no contest and served two years and two months in the Tenton State Prison. The government already had begun deportation proceedings when he was released from jail.

Adonis was given the choice of retirement in Italy or another prison term in the United States for perjury and later deportation. He sailed for Italy Jan. 3, 1956, in a $750-a-day suite aboard an Italian liner.

FOR PARKINSON'S DISEASE

Doctor Enthusiastic About Drug 'L. Dopa'

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Less than three years ago, a local physician was incapacitated by Parkinson's Disease, the incurable shaking palsy that attacks the central nervous system.

Now he's back on his feet and says he owes his progress to a new drug he's been working with in a program to help others like himself.

The drug, L. Dopa, has relieved Parkinsonism symptons— shaking hands, peculiar gait, fixed facial expression and muscle rigidity — in about 70 per cent of the cases where its been used. But it is not a cure.

Dr. Fred Schmidt (not his real name) is in a unique position to help victims of the disease, who are often withdrawn and devoid of hope.

"Having been through the mill, I'm able to sustain them," he says.

"They need encouragement," Schmidt explains. "One of the greatest problems is confidence — it's hard when you don't know if you're going to be able to get out of a chair and walk."

Schmidt, who asked to keep his true identity a secret, is now working as a volunteer with patients in a pilot program, he helped set up at John J. Kane Hospital, a county institution for the chronically ill and infirm.

Forced out of medical practice in his prime and later virtually confined to bed by Parkinson's disease, Schmidt is enthusiastic about the progress he's made with L. Dopa.

His speech is still halting and, like most L. Dopa users, he suffers from a side effect of the drug—an involuntary rolling of his head. But he seems to feel this is a small price to pay for the ability to walk and cure for himself again.

Schmidt first suspected he had the disease when he developed a hand tremor — usually an early sign. The cause of Parkinsonism is not known but, generally, it attacks late in life and the symptons grow progressively worse over ten or 20 years.

An estimated 350,000 — 400,000 Americans have the dread disease.

In the early stages, manual skills are gradually lost, speech becomes poor and chewing is difficult.

Later locomotion is extremely hampered and, in the advanced stages, the patient is severely handicapped in all voluntary movement and often confined to bed. His sense and intellect, however, are not damaged and the disease is not fatal.

Many victims are shy and withdrawn — embarrassed by their peculiar gait, jerky movements or helplessness.

But Schmidt says the patients at Kane are encouraged by the L. Dopa program.

Young Burglary Suspect Killed In 'Stakeout'

FRANKLIN -- A 17-year-old burglary suspect was shot and killed Wednesday night during an alleged burglary at a Rockland Township coal company, Franklin-based state troopers reported.

Police said Thursday night it was still undetermined which of three men in a "stakeout" actually shot Jerome Anthony Reisinger, of RD 1, Kennerdale.

Reisinger's body was found in a car abandoned in the parking lot of Cranberry High School about 2:30 a.m. Thursday.

Troopers launched an immediate probe into the shooting and linked the case to a burglary committed about 11 p.m. Wednesday.

According to state police, Reisinger and two companions, Robert Lee Culbertson, 21, of Seneca, and Raymond P. Lineman, 18, of RD 1, Van, drove into the parking lot of Goetz Coal Company about 11 p.m. The firm's owner, William Goetz, RD 1, Seneca, and two of his employes, were hiding in the main building on a "stakeout", watching for burglars, police said.

Police said the "stakeout" was in "cooperation" with them because of six burglaries that had occurred at the place in the past 20 days.

According to reports, Goetz and the employes were armed with a shotgun and rifles. The three youths got out of the car, police said, and Lineman broke into a shed that houses the control which activates the gas pump. Goetz, police said, ordered him to "freeze on the spot."

Lineman surrendered, but Culbertson and Reisinger made a break for the auto and jumped in. Goetz told officers the youths, with Culbertson at the wheel, attempted to run him down. He and another employe opened fire on the car with a shotgun and rifle.

Police said it was then that Reisinger was shot through the closed window. When police found the car, Reisinger's body was found slumped over in the front seat. The right door window had been blown out and the rear of the auto was peppered with shotgun pellets.

Culbertson was arrested at his home several hours later. He and Lineman were committed to Venango County Jail in lieu of posting $10,000 bond each.

Venango County Coroner Jon Hutchinson said the youth had been shot in the head.

Nab Shoplifter

Caroline M. Dickout, 47, of Apt. 2710 Pennsylvania ave. west, was arrested Friday afternoon by the Warren Borough Police and charged with shoplifting in the store of a local merchant.

She was arraigned before Justice of the Peace Martha Lawson and paid $38 in fines and costs.

U.S. Trade Deficit Reaches $821 Million

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. trade deficit with other nations rose to $821 million last month, the largest single imbalance ever recorded, the Commerce Department said Friday.

Government economists blamed dock strikes on the East and West coasts and said the huge red ink figure was no indication of longer-lasting underlying factors or of the impact President Nixon's 10 per cent surcharge on imports.

The seasonally adjusted October figures were $2.71 billion in exported goods against $3.53 billion in imports.

Asst. Commerce Secretary Harold C. Passer said East Coast shippers exported heavily in September in anticipation of the walkout by longshoremen from Maine to Texas. This was reflected, he said, in a $265-million trade surplus in September.

On the West Coast, where dock workers have returned to their jobs after a three-month walkout, Passer said there were so many ships waiting to be unloaded that exports were dramatically limited.

In both strikes, President Nixon has invoked machinery of the Taft-Hartley Act to send the men back to work during a "cooling-off" period.

Another factor, he said, was an increase in the importation of crude oil, natural gas and iron ore, which was not affected by the coastal tieups.

Other figures released on U.S. trade show that foreign exporters continued to believe they can sell their goods at a profit in the United States despite the surcharge.

For the first 10 months of 1971, the United States has recorded a trade deficit of $1.5 billion, compared to a $2.6-billion surplus for the comparable period in 1970.

During the same period U.S. exports have increased 3 per cent while imports have gone up 15 per cent.

State Spends $88 Million For Welfare Medical Aid

Pennsylvania spent $88,276,324 for cash assistance and medical assistance for those on welfare rolls during the month of August 1971 — the latest month for which complete figures are available from the Department of Public Welfare.

Of this amount, $58,250,063 was for cash assistance to 824,127 persons in the following categories:

The aid to 618,216 dependent children program received the most money, a total of $38,360,676, to cover 65.8 per cent of the total cost. General assistance came next with 105,671 persons listed who drew $10,421,981 to make up 17.9 per cent of the total expenditure, followed by aid to disabled with 33,938 persons receiving checks totaling $3,218,211 for 5.5 per cent of the total cost, the department announced.

Old-age assistance was fourth with 51,587 persons receiving $4,827,229 for 8.3 per cent and federal-state blind pensions made up 1.5 per cent of the total with $860,869. State blind pensions paid $561,097 to 7,381 persons for the final 1 per cent of August's welfare costs to the state.

Also in August, 113,407 public assistance households with 417,267 persons, plus 47,711 eligible low-income households with 163,470 persons paid $8,022,973 for $14,026,697 worth of food stamps.

There were 8,576 persons in Department of Public Welfare work training programs during August.

Union Leader 'Just Fine'

WASHINGTON (AP) — AFL-CIO President George Meany was described Friday as "just fine" although an official said he would remain at least two more days in an intensive care unit in George Washington University Hospital.

"He'll be here in the intensive care unit at least through Sunday," the spokesman said. "What happens thereafter he doesn't know and the doctors don't know."

Meany was admitted to the hospital Thursday after suffering chest pains. A preliminary diagnosis indicated the pains resulted from "a possible spasm in the coronary arteries," said Dr. Marvin Fuchs, the 77-year-old labor leader's physician.

Good Economic News Boosts Mart

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market, responding to favorable economic news, Friday made its largest gain since the day after President Nixon launched his new economic program. Trading was light.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials soared 17.96 points to close at 816.59 for the best showing since last Aug. 16, when the blue-chip indicator skyrocketed a record 32.93 points to finish at 888.95.

Analysts attribute the rally Friday to a combination of factors including news that the government's leading economic indicators rose sharply in October, President Nixon's move to end the Gulf and East Coast dock tieups with a strike injunction, and reports of his optimism about the upcoming international monetary talks.

The market surge followed a series of sessions in which prices touched successive 1971 lows. The Dow industrial average had tumbled some 24 points over a four-session span that ended last Tuesday.

Big Board volume declined to 10.88 million shares from 11.9 million shares Wednesday. Brokers said trading was slow because many investors were taking a long weekend after the Thanksgiving holiday.

Gains ran through all groups of stocks.

Of the 1,620 issues traded on the Big Board, 1,106 advanced and 242 declined. New yearly lows were reached by 64 issues and highs by three. Of the 1,120 issues traded on the American Stock Exchange, 674 advanced and 212 declined.

The most-active Big Board issue was Morse Shoe, up ¼ at 15⅛ on a volume of 184,100 shares.

The New York Stock Exchange index of some 1,300 common stocks climbed 0.90 to 50.57. The American Stock Exchange index jumped .23 to 23.63.

The Associated Press 60-stock average was up 5.1 at 293.5. Industrials were up 8.8, rails were up 3.0, and utilities were up 1.1.

The number of blocks of 10,000 shares or more traded on the Big Board declined to 54 from Wednesday.

Amex volume declined to 2.56 million shares from 2.9 million shares Wednesday.

IN TOKYO

family business scores 'strike'

By BOB ROGGE

Bowling is booming in Tokyo and the McMillen Lumber Co. of Sheffield has a good alley into the business the keglers are generating in that Oriental capital.

How so? Here's how. Bowling alleys are made of white maple, a superior type of hardwood that stands up well to the bouncing ball of the neophyte and provides a hard, glass-slick surface for the pro. McMillen Lumber Co. is producing a great quantity of tongue and grooved white maple boards for Japanese bowling alleys.

The boards are placed on edge to lay the alley and when properly finished are like a stretch of ice skating rink, and they wear for years.

There is one building in Tokyo that is 20-stories high and there are 20 lanes on each floor. That's 400 lanes and they will consume some 440,000 linear feet of white maple at approximately 1,100 feet per lane.

The McMillen Lumber Co. has been a family business for the past 40 years, according to Wendell W. McMillen, president of the firm. They had their origins in Clarion County in the Tionesta area, but moved to Sheffield some 30 years ago.

Three McMillen brothers run the business. Wendell in the front office, James who is mill foreman, and Robert the woods foreman. Their plant employs in the neighborhood of fifty persons and is one of the major industries in the area.

Holding down the front offices you will find Marcia Dahlgren as receptionist and Joyce Olson minding the company books. In Mr. McMillen's office you will find Angie Pellegrino, his secretary.

The plant consists of a sawmill, a dimension plant -- more about this later -- several kilns and ancillary workshops.

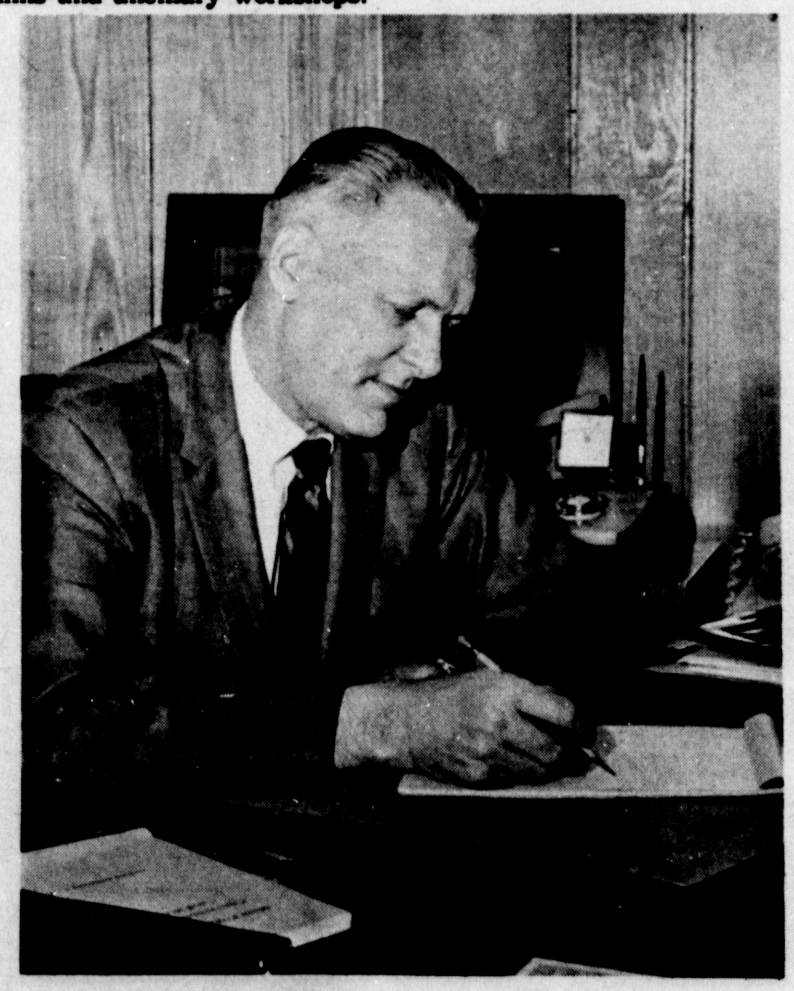

Paul Lindberg is general factotum at the plant and has been there since 1953. He serves as purchasing agent, payroll clerk, personnel director and whatever else is handed his way by the front office.

Each year the industry produces more than 4,000,000 board feet of cherry, hard and soft maple, beech, red oak, poplar, basswood and some birch; and the products are shipped by truck and rail to furniture and television manufacturers in Canada, the Carolinas and the West Coast. The mill is highly mechanized, dispensing with many of the older hand-done jobs, and in the really dangerous areas such as feeding the great circular saw that squares the logs, then cuts them into planks, the sequence is entirely mechanical with just one man controlling the entire operation.

To the uninitiated, a sawmill and dimension plant look like good places to stay out of, but the presence of a number of female workers gives you second thoughts -- if the ladies can do it, when can't I stand around and watch?

Most interesting, perhaps, of all the sawmill operations is the head-rig and carriage where the peeled-raw logs are manipulated by hydraulically controlled hooks and levers and are never touched by hand. The logs are fed onto the carriage, clamped into position and fed into the screaming circular saw. After each cut, the carriage returns and the log is neatly flipped over for another trip through the whirling saw teeth. When the log is squared, the operator, Berdean Thomas, makes the plank cuts. The side cuts, or slabs, eventually go into the chipper where they are reduced to little chunks and

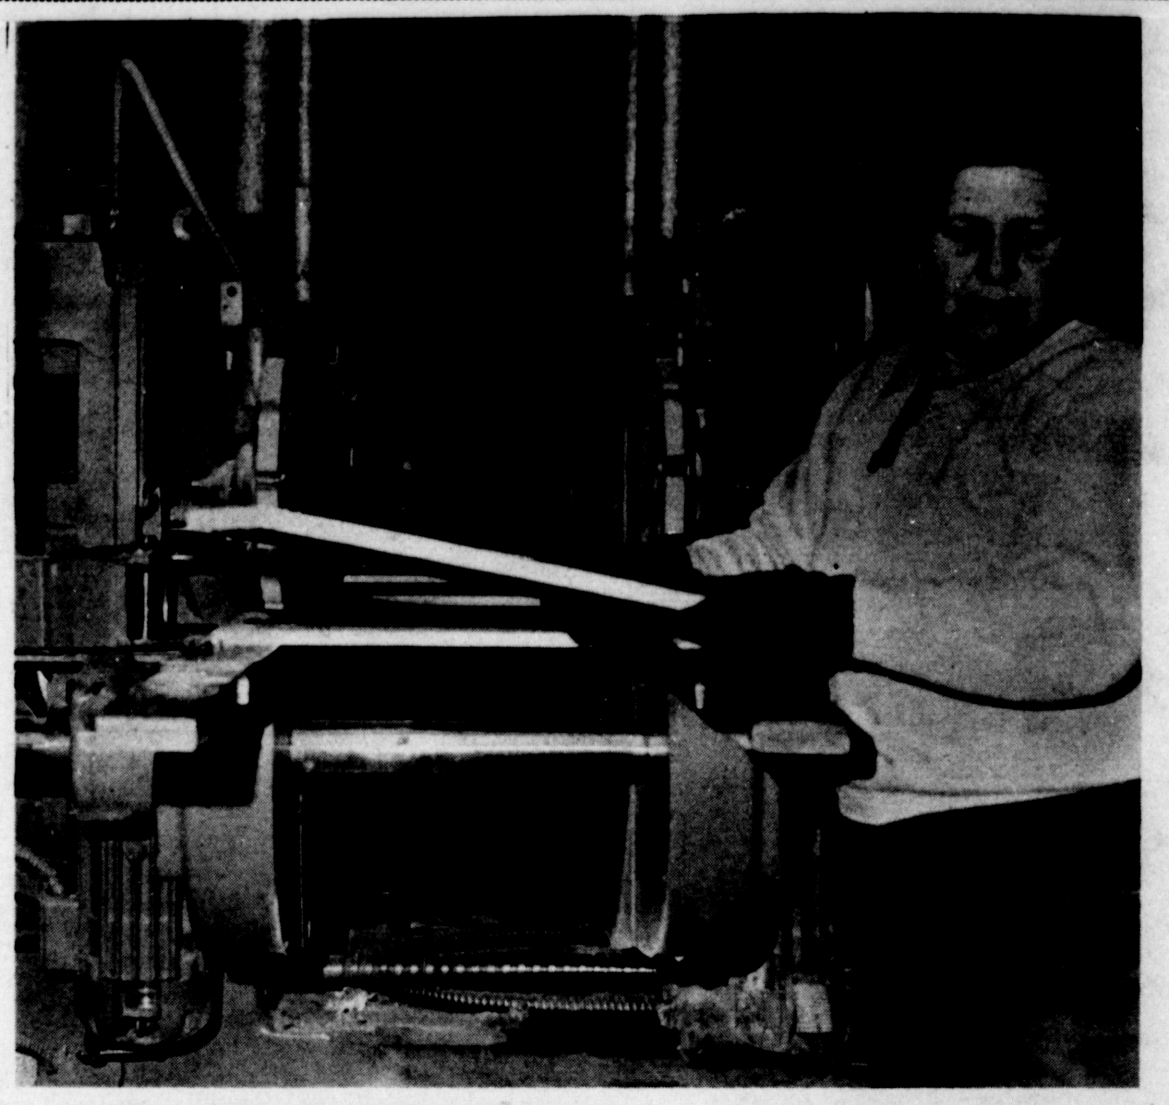

See McMILLEN Page B-3

ON THE COVER

Berdean Thomas, sawyer at the McMillen Lumber Company sawmill, takes the final cut on an oak log, squaring it off for gang-sawing into planks. The massive circular saw, seen at the right in high speed motion, bites through the hardwood with a long, sustained scream as the log moves steadily into its teeth. The log, and its transporting carriage, are controlled by Thomas from his booth. If you have fond ideas of going to a sawmill and smelling the fresh cut timber, don't go there when they are working oak. It smells.

READY FOR GLUEING MACHINE

Finished boards, planed, trimmed and sized, are taken from the final trimming machine by Ida May Smith ready to go to the glueing machine where they will be formed into rough blanks for cabinet drawer sides and bottoms, or other furniture parts.

HALF DOZEN PLANKS AT ONE RIP

The Linck gang saw takes the squared-off log and in one continuous feeding transforms it into six planks of any predetermined width. The toothed rollers grip the log firmly and the vertical saw blades make the multiple cuts. Ken Rubright steadies the log as it feeds into the gang saw.

PRECISE CONTROL

Kathy Miller, backed up by part of her day's output, feeds short lengths of stock wood into one of several planing machines in the dimension plant at McMillen Lumber Company. The planers smooth both top and bottom of the pieces. Later the edges will be smooth-finished. Kathy is one of a dozen or more women who work in the dimension plant.

GLUEING UP DRAWERS

Kenneth Smith fits together boards with pre-glued edges on the glueing table that will brace them in position until the glue sets. Smith uses a poly-vinyl glue that creates a stronger joint than the wood itself. When glued and locked in place, the piece will be swung up and toward the rear of the machine on an endless chain. When it returns again it will be ready for removal.

McMillen

shipped to the Hammermill Paper Co. pulpmill in Erie.

Other residual products of the plant: mostly sawdust, is disposed of in several manners, all economical to the firm and insuring almost complete use of the timber. Local farmers buy sawdust for stock bedding. More sawdust is sold to plastic and abrasives manufacturers and also to, of all things, fur processors where it is used in a tumbling operation to clean the fat off the raw skins before they are cured for making into articles of clothing.

The company does not stop here with its disposal problems. It is working with the forestry department of Penn State on developing new bark products (new uses for tree bark that will further increase the more complete use of the tree that has been felled.)

All lumbering operations begin with trees and the McMillen Lumber Co. owns 2,500 acres of timberland, but depends mainly on the Allegheny National Forest for the majority of its raw products. A ten-man logging crew working under Robert McMillen, or contract loggers, build timber roads, cut the trees and bring out the logs and load them onto trucks for shipment to the mill.

The first step in transferring a log into, say, lengths of hard maple board for those Tokyo bowling alleys, is debarking. This is done outside the sawmill by a Hosmer debarker, a machine that resembles a prehistoric monster ravenously feeding on its fallen prey. The debarker moves along the spinning log, ripping and tearing off the bark and the chips really fly where they may. A thirty-foot flight is not unusual for the bits and pieces. As it moves along the log, the debarker follows the contours and seems to be nodding its head up and down as it gnaws.

Once the log has been reduced to planks, or boards, the wood is placed in the three gas-fired kilns (pronounced kills) where it is scientifically dried out to the required six per cent moisture content. Slow, controlled drying is the secret of the whole process with heat and fans and even a water spray all being used to insure proper drying without checking or cracking. Each kiln can take up to 20,000 board feet of lumber. The company also operates two kilns at Kane, Pa.

On March 16 this year, one of the Sheffield kilns caught fire and required the efforts of firemen from Sheffield, Clarendon, Warren and Kane to extinguish. About 20,000 board feet of hard maple was destroyed and Mr. McMillen said damage came to between $10,000 and $15,000.

In the fall of 1968 the company installed a Moore grading machine, coupled with a Moore automatic stacker and destacker. These pieces of equipment occupy their own building and with them one man can take loads of lumber, automatically measure it for its board footage, grade it, send it to the stacker or in another direction for loading on a truck. A closed circuit television permits the operator to spot developing trouble (jumbled planks, etc.) and take corrective action. He can also spot color each board according to its grade. The machinery can handle up to 30,000 board feet of lumber per day and costs in the neighborhood of $100,000.

In the dimension mill the kiln-dried lumber is further processed before shipment to the final manufacturer. A moulder machine tongue-and-grooves the hard maple for those bowling alleys; a gang saw rips out six planks at a time; various planing machines and saws reduce the planks to their final dimensions (hence the name of the plant) and they are ready for shipment.

Also in the dimension mill there are made certain parts for furniture products that call for glueing together pieces of wood to obtain the required overall size. The operators use a poly-vinyl glue and the wood pieces are locked into frames mounted on a continuous chain belt -- some twelve feet long. By the time the glued article returns to the starting point it has dried and is removed.

McMillen Lumber Co. produces only semi-finished wood products for sale to manufacturers who thus save about five times their present floor space and about two and one-half times their present labor force.

Although the company specializes in semi-finished wood products, it can turn out beautifully finished paneling. Walnut, oak and cherry have been used to provide both decoration and space separation in the offices.

The company is certainly not an industrial giant, but how many business firms can start their product with the woodsman's cry of "Timber!" as he tells a giant tree and have it end up with the Japanese equivalent of "Strike!" as the ten pins disappear at the end of the hard maple alley?

Cut Wasteful Use

"One of the biggest challenges facing America today," Assemblyman Franklin Kury told the House Conservation Committee, "is whether its people can have all the electric power they want and still retain a decent environment."

Kury was testifying in support of legislation that would give the Department of Environmental Resources the power to approve or disapprove all future construction of electric power plants and transmission lines within the Commonwealth.

Continuing his testimony, Kury said, "Every power plant, whether nuclear or fossil burning, requires a stack for discharging gas or smoke into the atmosphere. Fossil fueled electric plants discharge about 50 per cent of the sulphur oxides, about 25 per cent of the particulate, and approximately 25 per cent of the nitrogen oxide emissions in the nation. Across the country, power plants emit some 12 million tons of sulphur oxide into the atmosphere every year."

Considering current predictions that by 1990 this nation will be using 5.83 trillion kilowatt hours of electric power, compared to a consumption rate of 1.52 trillion kilowatt hours in 1970, an increase of 248 per cent, there is reason to agree with the point the representative is making. Such an increase, whether generated by nuclear or fossil fuel, can and will threaten the world's environment. However, there is reason to think that other controls in addition to controlling construction sites are needed.

And possibly the greatest of these controls would be the limiting of electric power use. Not the limiting of necessary use, but a limiting of the wasteful use that one can observe on every hand in any community. Electricity, the generating of which places a heavy demand on our natural resources, and contributes immeasurably to our pollution problems, is expended by the American public in an extremely careless manner as we attempt to replace night with day-like illumination, or replace light of day itself in windowless buildings.

As Theodore Roosevelt told Congress in 1907, "To waste, to destroy, our natural resources" is to undermine the nation's prosperity. And in 1970 we could add, "As well as defile man's habitat" if the reference applied to the generation of electric power.

'GREAT NEWS FROM THE SENATE! $20.4 MILLION FOR EVERY MAJOR-PARTY NOMINEE IN THE '72 CAMPAIGN—AND FOR YOU, THE TAXPAYER, NINETEEN BUCKS TAX CUT!'

ART BUCHWALD

Campaign Sabotage

WASHINGTON—Once again Congress is attempting to pass legislation which would infringe on the rights of people. The Senate passed a bill last week which would permit each taxpayer to donate $1 of his taxes to finance the 1972 presidential campaign. The House has several bills limiting the amount of money politicians can spend on their campaigns.

If any of these bills become law, it means that the right of large corporations and labor unions to buy politicians would be abrogated, and the vested interests in this country would be hard put to finance the campaigns of congressmen, senators and the President.

Terence L. Bloodstone, president of the Washington Order of Loyal Lobbyists, angrily denounced the new plans to finance politicians as a threat to the American political way of life.

"The salvation of this democracy," he told me at a $500-a-plate political testimonial dinner, "is big business' and big labor's financing of political campaigns. For years we have made it possible for every politician in this country to be elected. There isn't one congressman, senator or governor who doesn't owe a debt to us. Now Congress wants to take that away."

"It does seem unfair," I admitted.

Bloodstone stabbed his fork into his lobster thermidor.

"We've been buying and selling politicians for years. They trust us, they believe in us, they'll go to bat for us."

"Many of them are even in bed with you," I said, trying to be helpful.

He ignored this remark. "Look around at this dinner. Every table of 10 people represents $5,000. Who bought these tables? Corporations, bankers, manufacturers and public-minded millionaires. We don't ask anything for ourselves. We just want the best man elected to the best job. Do you think people who contribute one lousy dollar from their taxes will have any idea who the best man is?"

"I should say not," I replied. "You have to contribute a lot of money to know what is good for the country."

Bloodstone started tearing his duck a l'orange apart.

"Do you know what is going to happen if these political fund-raising schemes become law? The politicians aren't going to be responsible to anybody. They're going to figure it's the taxpayer's money so they don't have to answer for their actions."

"It's true," I said. "At least now a politician knows who gave him the money and can react accordingly."

"The Democrats are sore," Bloodstone said, "because they can't get anyone to come to their dinners. But I say if a political party can't sell out a $500-a-plate dinner, it shouldn't be in politics. Just because they don't have an Agnew or a Martha Mitchell is no reason to sabotage all of the campaign fund-raising methods of this country."

Bloodstone was now gulping down his foie gras.

I said, "It seems a pity that after all the seed work the lobbyists have done to get politicians in their pocket, that a group of senatots or congressmen would destroy it with some self-serving legislation."

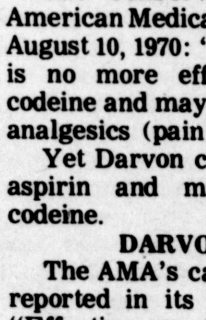

"Don't think the fight is over," Bloodstone said. "The Senate bill has to go to the House and then it has to go to the President. Do you think any Republican President would sign a law that would help the Democrats finance their campaign?"

"I should hope not," I said.

The waiter brought our cherries jubilee.

Bloodstone belched. "Besides, we have to think of the economy. What's going to happen to all the hotel banquet rooms if they do away with political fund-raising dinners?"

"What a blow to Conrad Hilton," I said.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Refuses To Retract

By Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON -- The makers of the anti-pain pill Darvon have challenged our charges that their prize pill is no better than aspirin for stopping pain and, worse, that it is being taken by addicts, sometimes with lethal results.

We expected the pill's producer, Eli Lilly & Co., to howl. After all, the company rang up $83 million last year in Darvon sales. But we didn't expect the respected firm to tell outright lies, one of them now admitted by a shamefaced spokesman.

In its answer to our column, Lilly claimed flatly that "no injectable form of Darvon is marketed." The company knew this was untrue. Robert Newell, Lilly's press chief, now concedes an injectable form is marketed overseas. He also concedes that domestic Darvon can be dissolved and injected.

Here are additional facts that Lilly omitted from its statement and would like to hide from the public in order to keep those sales at the $83 million mark:

The conservative Journal of the American Medical Association reported on August 10, 1970: "Propoxyphene (Darvon) is no more effective than aspirin or codeine and may even be inferior to these analgesics (pain killers)."

Yet Darvon costs 50 times more than aspirin and many times more than codeine.

DARVON VS. ASPIRIN

The AMA's cautious Council on Drugs reported in its 1971 Drug Evaluations: "Effectiveness of (Darvon) in a dose of 32 mg. is questionable, and in a dose of 65 mg., it is no more, and usually less, effective than the same dose of codeine or usual dose of aspirin.... Abuse of (Darvon) and development of morphine-type drug dependencies have been reported."

Yet millions of Americans use Darvon, and thousands of doctors prescribe it. Its wide usage, evidently, is based more on ballyhoo than on medical merit.

The National Academy of Sciences-National Research Council, whose official reports confirm the AMA's findings, also warn: "'Poisoning produced by (Darvon) is essentially typical of narcotics overdose.... Its general pharmacological properties are those of the narcotics."

Yet Darvon has somehow avoided a federal listing as a narcotic. This can be attributed, in part, to the power of the drug lobby in Washington. President Nixon, whose favorite sugar daddy is Warner-Lambert Pharmaceutical's grand old Elmer Bobst, has declared his opposition to more drug regulation. And the reluctant regulators at the Food and Drug Administration take their signals from the White House.

The respected Medical Letter also reports that Darvon is "capable of producing dependences." Even two years ago, states the Medical Letter, Lilly had "on file 57 cases of dependence as well as 17 cases of 'questionable dependence.' "

Senator Gaylord Nelson, D-Wis., has also developed evidence supporting our charges against Darvon. For example, Dr. William Martin, chief of the National Institute of Mental Health at the Addiction Research Center in Lexington, Ky., told the Senator that Darvon "produces a morphine-like euphoria" and warned that it "should not be prescribed in place of aspirin."

Dr. John Adriani, an AMA Drug Council chairman, called Darvon "markedly overrated." And Dr. Leo Hollister, associate staff chief at the Veterans Hospital in Palo Alto, Calif., told Senator Nelson of his efforts to restrict the use of Darvon because it is no better than aspirin and "probably costs 40 or 50 times as much."

$4 MILLION EXCESS

The Senator found that the Defense Department had spent $4,360,784 on Darvon. The same amount of aspirin would have cost only $172,380, more than $4 million less.

In our earlier column on Darvon, we quoted from a new federally-sponsored report. Our source had asked us to withhold the name of the report and its sponsoring agency. We have now been released from this restriction.

The study was sponsored by the Health, Education, and Welfare Department and was directed by medical writer-scientist Dr. R. F. Maronde. As yet unpublished, it deals with patients at Los Angeles County-University of Southern California Medical Center. It alleges that Darvon and other widely prescribed drugs have a "grave potential for abuse and have been observed to be employed most frequently by drug abuse patients."

Some patients are wangling over-prescriptions from their doctors, or from several doctors at the same time. The excess Darvon, thereafter, sometimes makes its way into the black market.

Writes Maronde: "In the Los Angeles area, and perhaps elsewhere, (Darvon) is now being used by heroin addicts and other drug abusers who remove the material from the capsules, put it in solution and inject it intravenously for its psychopharmacological effects."

Conclusion: we won't retract our charges against Darvon.

DATELINE: HARRISBURG

Negress Opposes Busing

By Richard Haratine

HARRISBURG—School busing is not wildly unanimous among Blacks, it now appears. Rep. Sarah Anderson, D-Phila., the only Negress in the Legislature, is co-sponsor of a House anti-busing bill. "I don't think busing helps racial conditions," says the 18-year legislator who plans to retire at the end of her present term. "I'd much rather see the level of education raised in predominantly Negro areas." Mrs. Anderson says she reflects the views of "many Black parents". The measure, introduced by Pittsburgh Democrat Charles Caputo, removes public schools from the Human Relations act definition of places of public accommodation and would strip the HR Commission of its authority to require racially-balances school districts ....Attorney General Shane Creamer's argument in favor of a kitty for crime victims: "Government, having failed to prevent crimes, is bound to compensate victims of these crimes."

+++

That State Senate redistricting issue isn't at all cut and dried. Under it, only three of 50 incumbents will run in exactly the same districts they now represent. Those in even-numbered districts, who don't have to run until 1974, will represent people who never had the chance to vote for, or against them. When similar conditions prevailed in the 1966 redistricting, the State Supreme Court threw out a legislative redistricting plan and ordered all 50 Senators to run....The equal (sex) rights thing may be getting out of hand. When Gov. Shapp names a 25-woman advisory committee on abortion, it will be challenged on grounds that its composition discriminates against men....Before a federal court in Pittsburgh temporarily curbed Pennsylvania's driver's suspension system last month, the State was putting 650 dangerous drivers a week off the roads. The Department of Transportation hopes to resolve the impasse by giving a driver 30 days to appeal if he believes there has been an error. No rehearings would have to be granted on questions of guilt relating to violations themselves. The licensee, says PennDOT, already had the right to appeal that at the time of the offense.

+++

The Rizzo-Shapp dialogue, off to a flying start the day after election, is reaching classic proportions for rancor. Says the Philadelphia mayor-elect: "Shapp's real motive (in sending a crime commission team to Philly) is the game of politics. Shapp is afraid of (Arlen) Spector (Philadelphia district attorney, a Republican, and a gubernatorial prospect in 1974). The governor's only concern is getting himself reelected in 1974)." Gov. Shapp: "He (Rizzo) will be pleasantly surprised how sincere we are to help." Rizzo: "If Shapp wants to be governor of Pennsylvania again, he'll have to do a lot more for Philadelphia or he won't have my support."

+++

Prisoners would have a better chance of straightening out, thinks Rep. William Eckensberger, if they were serving time somewhere in prisons in their own state. In the newest switch on old home week, the Lehigh Democrat wants an exchange program worked out so that inmates could do time closer to home."Prisoners could be exchanged in a way that would insure the ultimate in help in getting them back into society as useful citizens and taxpayers," explains Eckensberger.

ON THE RIGHT . . .

The Campaign Expense Problem – I

By William F. Buckley Jr.

The Democrats are jubilant over their bill which, simply stated, guarantees them money for presidential campaigns roughly equal to what the Republicans spend, perhaps greater than the Republicans spend; and in any case, puts a ceiling on what the Republicans will spend.

The idea is to redress a Democratic disadvantage, namely smaller cash contributions. The Democratic advantage is: organized labor unions, and of course lop-sided Democratic registration, which advantages Republicans strive to overcome, mostly without success, by making extra financial sacrifices.

The Senate bill is pretty rank, and the President ought to veto it. So then where are we, on the whole matter of campaign expenses? Which means, as a general matter, mostly the expenses of television and radio.

Everyone having agreed that something should be done to regulate the use of television during political campaigns,the debate is on. The approaches, as they affect the politicians, are roughly of two schools. The first calls not for limiting the total amount spent during any campaign, but the total amount spendable by any single individual. Under this formula, it is abstractly possible in any single presidential campaign to spend one hundred billion dollars, assuming every voter begged, borrowed, or stole the maximum permitted (under Senator Hugh Scott's old plan) of $15,000.

In other words, Scott's bill reduces to one point essentially: rich people may not contribute as much money as some rich people have contributed in the past. Moreover, the Scott bill forbids anyone running for president from spending more than 50,000 of his own dollars. I ak you, where would the Rockefeller campaigns of the past have got to with so little Rockefeller money? Where they deserved? An interesting point. And Jack Kennedy? His family spent a lot more than 50 grand in the early days.

The alternative (Congressman Gerald Ford) formula is based on fixing total permissible figures for particular contests based on the number of registered voters: 20 cents a piece if you are running for President, 25 cents for the Senate, 30 cents for the House.

The Ford Plan seems to be saying that Congress should decide how much should be spent on a campaign,never mind that a particular candidate (let us imagine) so excites his backers at a particular point that they pour in the money. Under the Ford Plan, Messrs. Moneybags could presumably continue to make up for the delinquency of other voters by enormous personal contributions, just so they didn't end up contributing more than the candidate is permitted to spend.

Then there are two schools of thought affecting the broadcasters. The first (Scott's) acknowledges that the broadcasters should be paid for the use of their facilities. The second (Ford's) would require the broadcasters to put up free time during a period just before election—five half-hours for presidential candidates, three for Senate, two for the House, during the 35-day period before the general election.

There is general agreement that major presidential candidates should be given coverage without—as is the case under the existing fairness doctrine—requiring that the vegetarian candidate be given equal time. Add to this unanimity on the matter of reporting the sources of contributions, plus a number of schemes aimed at shortening the period during which the primary and election campaigns take place; and that is what the arguments are all about.

The Scott formula is preferable, though it has a weakness. It is a risky business to put arbitrary limits on the amount of money that can be spent during a particular campaign.It is done of course in England quite routinely (Prime Minister Heath spent less than $3,000 on his own reelection, but Heath was elected prime minister by his party, not by the voters). A contribution to the political candidate is a way of exercising one's freedom to speak, and I can conceive of times of great national division—for instance the great debates of 1968 or 1939-1941—when the citizen feels so strongly about an issue of national policy that he desires to make a special sacrifice in order to make possible the widest circulation of his point of view. Since in such situations the point of view is wedded to the candidacy of a particular human being, running for the Presidency, and, down the line, for the Senate and the House, one wonders at the wisdom, let alone the constitutionality, of saying that a candidate cannot spend all the money that is sent him.

The Readers Speak

Dear Sir,

I am writing this letter about the South Street School situation. The idea of mothers complaining is sickening. What do they have to complain about? At least they are getting a new school -- even if it is in February.

I wish they had to contend with the school where my children go, a very run down and very dirty, two-story building that doesn't even have an outdoor fire escape.

As for the busing situation, their elementary school children have to ride three or four in a seat. The ones that have to go to high school must ride four in a seat. If there is not enough room they are made to sit on the floor since the law requires that all be seated.

So, I would like to know why all the griping? At least they can see a new school in the very near future.

A Concerned Mother

Dear Sir,

As of the first of September, I have been off of active duty with the U.S. Navy and I have been attending college as a full-time student. Also I am trying to hold down a part-time job. With my earnings, I am trying to support myself, my wife and my daughter. I am trying to make car payments, insurance, rent, tuition, and several other personal financial obligations.

I applied for my G.I. benefits for school and as yet I have not received even a certificate of eligibility. The Veterans Administration has not done a commendable job in trying to supply any help.

The situation for a veteran who is trying to take advantage of the educational benefits that are made available to him is very substandard. I think that it is about time that the persons in charge of veterans affairs should be made to take a little interest in the men who are laying their lives on the line every day to keep these people living in a great democracy.

If we veterans go on welfare or unemployment, we are looked down on as lazy, ignorant freeloaders, but how else are we to make a living?

Can you possibly imagine the utter and total confusion in the Veterans Administration when all our troops finally come home and face this same dilemma?

In conclusion, I say it is about time our representatives in Washington got on the ball and put a little pressure where it will benefit our own country and its defenders!

THE COOK'S CORNER

Make Merry For The Holiday

By NATALIE WILLIAMS

We've got a lot of that white stuff up our way, must live in the snow belt in this area, and dozens of birds are flocking to the feeder table. It put us in mind of a column we clipped somewhere along the line a while back. Trim a Christmas tree for the birds.

We know there's times when you're apt to feel frazzled as the big day approaches, when there's ribbons and wrappings all over the house, but this would be a good project for now to herald the Christmas season.

There's nothing that warms the heart like having friends drop in for an open house or an informal party—more about that later. Feeding our feathered friends is a heart-warming experience, too, and can provide hours of pleasure in the weeks ahead.

As a matter of fact, this would be a good project for the children who would probably love every minute of it. It'll keep them busy and out of your hair but everyone can share in the joy of watching the wild birds at their feast. Here's how to make some of the ornaments most popular with cardinals, juncoes, chickadees, downy woodpeckers and other birds most likely to be in the area.

Pine Cones, Dip some good-sized pine cones in hot bird pudding (wild bird seed in melted suet is fine) and let harden. Tie to tree with colored ribbons. Smaller birds, like the black-capped chickadees, can cling right to the cone as they dine.

Popcorn Bell or Cone. Use ice cream cones, covering the outside with a thick coat of peanut butter. Press pieces of popped popcorn on the cone. Use a colored pipe cleaner to either hang the ornament like a bell or to secure it over the end of a branch.

Suet Balls. Form suet into balls, press in some bird seed, and tie them into bags made from the coarse netting that onions and potatoes are sold in. Hang from sturdy limbs. This is another ornament that birds can cling to as they eat.

Strings. Use a large needle and red yarn to string garlands of popcorn, raisins and pieces of apple to wind around tree branches. (Don't use cranberries—somehow, the birds don't like them.)

Shells. Hollow out a good-sized gourd or saw a diamond-shaped opening in a coconut shell. Leave the meat inside for the birds and add bird pudding, crumbs, suet, seed or other bird food. Hang the coconut shell by a screw eye; bore two holes in the top of the gourd and hang by a pipe cleaner.

Apples, Poke sticks through small apples and tie them to the tree with ribbon.

Give the kids an inexpensive bird guide book if you don't already have one, and make sure the tree or bush is in full view of a window. Right now there's a pair of cardinals among the other birds on the table and the bright red color of the male bird is like the sun shining through the clouds on a cold winter's day.

Now back to you and me and all the rest of us who are going to be gathering to share the holiday festivities.

Nothing brings raves like the little something that comes out of the oven after your guests have arrived. With a minimum of trouble and expense you can make hot puff pastry hors d'oeuvres the hit of your party. And you can make them days ahead of time and store them in your freezer until it's time to pop them into the oven.

You can make about 200 Seasoned Triangles, 60 Cheese Twists or 120 Onion Puffs for under a dollar. For a little more you can make 50 to 60 Cocktail Franks. You can't beat that for price.

We told you about these last year, but we had such marvelous success with ours we're going to repeat for the benefit of new readers or those who have forgotten how delightful these wonderful little tidbits can be.

All you need is a package of Pepperidge Farm frozen patty shells. Thaw the shells in the refrigerator overnight. Work with one or two shells at a time, pressing down with the heel of your hand, then roll gently. Don't roll them into a ball as you would pie dough and don't let them come to room temperature if the dough warms slightly as you're working it, return it to the refrigerator for a few minutes. Or cover the shaped appetizers and place them in your freezer. They can go right from freezer to oven.

Seasoned Triangles. On a floured board or pastry cloth roll out patty shells, one at a time into a square. Turn dough over and trim to 6 x 6 inches. Brush with cold water and sprinkle with seasoned salt. Cut into 1-½-inch squares using a sharp knife or pastry wheel. Cut each square in half diagonally to form a triangle. Place an inch apart on ungreased baking sheet. Chill 10 min. Repeat with remaining shells. Bake at 400 for 10 to 12 min. or until golden.

One patty shell makes 32 triangles. A package makes nearly 200. Dough may also be cut into squares, circles, strips or crescents. Other toppings may include mixtures of grated cheese, curry powder, red pepper, chili powder and-or garlic salt.

Cheese Twists. On a floured board or pastry cloth stack and press together two patty shells. Roll into a rectangle. Turn dough over and trim to 8 x 10 inches. Brush with water. Combine ¼ cup grated Parmesan, ½ tsp. paprika, ⅛ tsp. cayenne, ⅛ tsp. salt. Sprinkle half of rectangle with 4 tsp. of the cheese mixture, leaving an ⅛-inch margin around the outside edges. Fold over remaining half to form a 4 x 10 inch rectangle. Press together lightly with rolling pin. Cut rectangle into strips ½ x 4 inches. Grasping strips at each end, twist in opposite directions about three times to form a spiral. Place 1 inch apart on an ungreased baking sheet, pressing ends down to prevent them for unwinding. Chill 10 min. Repeat with remaining shells. Bake at 400 about 10 min. Makes 5 doz.

Onion Puffs. On a floured board or pastry cloth, roll out patty shells one at a time to form a 6-inch circle. Cut into small circles using a 1-½ inch ctter. Place on ungreased baking sheet. Top each circle with a small dab of mayonnaise, an onion slice and another dab of mayonnaise. Sprinkle with paprika. Chill 10 min. Bake at 400 for 12 to 15 min. One shell makes 20 puffs; one package, 120.

Cocktail Franks. On floured board or pastry cloth, roll out patty shells one at a time into a rectangle. Turn dough over and trim to 5 x 6 inches. Divide into two 2-½ x 6 inch strips. Cut strips crosswise about ½ inch shorter than length of frank. Roll frank in pastry strip, allowing at least ¼-inch overlap. Moisten end of dough and press to seal. Place seam side down, one inch apart, on ungreased baking sheet. Chill 15 min. Bake at 400 for 12 to 15 min. Serve hot on toothpicks and pass mustard if desired. One shell makes 8 to 12; one package, 4 to 5 doz.

Liquid refreshments at holiday events can consist of many things—it doesn't always have to be cocktails. You might wish to serve a hot punch instead, or hot chocolate for the kids, or even a hot appetizer for a crowd to whet the appetite before they approach the buffet table. If you have a party perk, you're in business. It's always there for coffee for those late night gatherings, but here's some other marvelous ideas.

Turn it into a hot punch bowl. Into the party perk pour 1-½ qts. cranberry juice and 2 qts. apple juice. In basket place ½ cup brown sugar, ½ tsp. salt, 4 cinnamon sticks, 1-½ tsp. whole cloves. Plug and perk. Makes 15 punch cup servings.

Make it a hot chocolate pot. Into party perk pour 8 cups water and 8 cups milk. In basket, layer evenly on bottom 1 cup small sugar cubes. Place basket assembly in perk; pour ¾ cup chocolate syrup over cubes. Add ¼ tsp. salt. Plug and perk. When "serve light" comes on, disconnect and remove basket assembly. Makes 18-20 servings.

Serve hot buttered tomato juice as an appetizer. In party perk without basket combine two 46-oz. cans tomato juice with 1 tbsp. Worcestershire, 1 tsp. salt, 1 tsp. ground oregano, ½ cup butter. Plug and perk. Makes 16-20 servings.

Turn it into a soup kettle and serve hot bouillon or unbelievable onion soup. Saute 6 to 8 thinly sliced large onions in ¼ cup butter until golden. Fill party perk with water to 24-cup level. Add 2 tbsp. Worcestershire. In basket, place onions plus 15 beef bouillon cubes. Plug and perk. Remove basket and offer onion slices in chafing dish. Makes about 18 servings.

Jack Lemmon, Tony Curtis and Natalie Wood star in this comedy about a New York-to-Paris road race in 1908, which pits The Great Leslie against wi'y Professor Fate.

Assault on an Indian agent draws the FBI into a case involving a series of mining accidents and superstitions about an Indian burial ground on The FBI at 8 p.m. on Ch. 7. Moonlike formations in California's Mono Crate Park form an eerie backdrop for the drama.

A made-for-TV space adventure "Earth II," and starring Gary Lockwood and Tony Franciosa will be presented on the ABC Sunday Night Movie on Ch.7 at 9 p.m. Earth II is an orbiting station in space threatened by a nuclear warhead.

The legend of Billy the Kid takes a grim twist, with Bobby Darin as a deranged ex-con who thinks that he's the infamous outlaw—and that Cade is Sheriff Pat Garrett (the Kid's executioner) on Cade's County at 9:30 p.m. on Chs. 4, 10 and 35.

Vengeful Miles Baker (guest star Tim Matheson) kidnaps Howard Miller (Charles Aidman) who kidnapped him when he was a small boy in "By Reason of Insanity" on The Bold Ones on Chs. 2, 6 and 12 at 10 p.m. Nichols (Burl Ives) feels Baker is sane but wins acquittal on an insanity plea.

MONDAY

Milburn Stone returns as Doc, in this first episode of a three part story entitled "Gold Train" on Gunsmoke at 8 p.m. on Chs. 4, 10 and 35. Matt Dillon is seriously wounded in this story and Doc and Kitty must transport him by train for serious surgery.

Roy Thinnes and Lynn Loring star in "Journey to the Far Side of the Sun," a science fiction thriller to be telecast on NBC Monday Night at the Movies on Chs. 2, 6 and 12 at 9 p.m. The story revolves around the most fantastic space mission ever attempted— a landing by two astronauts on a recently discovered planet having the same orbit as earth, but located on a reverse side of the sun.

TUESDAY

A drama that captures the warmth of deep friendship—and the horrors of dying young will be seen on the ABC Movie of the Week on Ch. 7 at 8:30 p.m. as it presents "Brian's Song" starring James Caan and Billy Dee Williams. This is the true story of Chicago Bear's running back Gale Sayers and his teammate Brian Piccolo, who were roommates. Piccolo died of cancer.

Nichols (James Garner) is caught between a fun-loving spit-fire-temptress and her watchdogs—a brutish boy friend and his three mean-tempered brothers on Nichols at 9:30 p.m. on Chs. 2, 6 and 12.

WEDNESDAY

Winnie the Pooh, the lovable little bear of A.A. Milne's children's classics faces a wind storm in the Hundred Aker Wood and a nightmare peopled with heffalumps and woozles, all the while protecting his honey supply, in Winnie the Pooh and the Blustery Day at 8 p.m. on Chs. 12. The story is narrated by Sebastian Cabot.

ESP and hypnosis are the dramatic ingredients in "The Devil and Miss Sarah" to be presented on the Wednesday Movie Special on Ch. 11 at 8 p.m. The TV movie stars Gene Barry as a captured outlaw who is counting on his strange power over a woman to help make his escape.

THURSDAY

Old-fashioned detective work is the essence of "License to Kill" on Ironside at 9 p.m. on Chs. 2, 6 and 12. David Carradine plays a cop charged with murder thanks to a well-planned frame-up.

The CBS Thursday Night Movie on Chs. 4, 10 and 35 will feature "The Impossible Years" starring David Niven and Lola Albright at 9 p.m. Niven stars as a psychiatrist whose university lectures on how to raise teenagers without problems, belie a frenetic home life with his 17-year-old daughter.

FRIDAY

Fred Astaire and Mickey Rooney lend their voices to the musical fantasy about the origin of Santa Claus in Santa Claus is Coming to Town on Ch. 7 at 8 p.m. It tells how Kris was brought up amid dozens of toymaking elves and later braved the Mountain of the Whispering Winds to bring gifts to the children of Sombertown.

NBC World Premiere Movie on Chs. 2, 6 and 12 at 8:30 p.m. will present "Desperate Mission" starring Ricardo Montalban and Earl Holliman. Montalban stars as the legendary early California outlaw, Joaquin Murieta, champion of the poor, who is hired for a special mission and soon finds himself in conflict with other outlaws.

MAP TO CURB NOISE

LONDON (AP) — Four thousand students are cooperating to draw up a "noise map" of Britain by taking decibel meter readings indoors and outdoors, in residential and public places and especially at busy traffic intersections. The aim is to establish "quiet zones" where noise above a statutory level could be banned.

WHAT YOU CAN DO TO HEAL DEFECTIVE VISION
— PART I —
Vision and perception are more than just eyesight. Three people who previously suffered from poor vision tell how their thinking and their better understanding of God helped heal these difficulties.

Your Horoscope

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

FOR SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 27, 1971

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 20)— Some plans may be changed whether you like it or not. S ? Be composed and patient, f r you may well profit by t e change. Control emotion , aggressiveness.

TAURUS (Apr. 21 to M y 21)—Venus now stimulat s initiative, creativity; also hel s you handle tedious tasks in a brighter spirit. Use your talen s astutely.

GEMINI (May 22 to Jun e 21)— The joyous mood will e just as important in everyd y work as it is in pleasure , special interests—more s . Steer your course witho t fretting or rushing.

CANCER (June 22 to Ju y 23)— If you were sensibly careful in the early part of t e week, you will be pleased t most turns of events th s weekend. Put a little extra grit into this day's endeavors.

LEO (July 24 to Aug. 23)— A pound of fury with only an oun e of control could send this day clear off course. No excuses to yourself. You've a good head, use it—and help others stay on course, too.

VIRGO (Aug. 24 to Sept. 23) — With little planetary help your day will require considerable thinking, reviewing, then deliberate action and follow-through tactics for full success.

LIBRA (Sept. 24 to Oct. 23)— You may have a tendency now toward discontent, irritability with persons who do not understand you. Recognize this possibility and determine to control such feelings.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24 to Nov. 22)— Too often you may think certain "little things" do not matter as long as they are taken care of "later." This may be day's big mistake. Control a present tendency toward lethargy.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23 to Dec. 21)— You may have a complex program. Tackle it with unobtrusive but solid determination, however. Back what you should stoutly, but avoid being sharp with others.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20)— Polish up, trim where it is pertinent to do so, and be systematic in all things. A grand day for a spirited, enterprising Capricornian.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19)— Of course you need cooperation, but a certain amount of competition will spur you on. Accept challenges enthusiastically.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20)— Do not let a desire for pleasure and comfort cause you to neglect duties important to your future. Be tactful in making requests, not demanding.

'BRIAN'S SONG'

James Caan grimaces in pain as a concerned Billy Dee Williams looks on in a scene from "Brian's Song" on the ABC Television Network's "Movie of the Week," Tuesday, Nov. 30 (8:30-10:00 p.m.) Caan stars as Brian Piccolo, the late Chicago Bear fullback who was struck down by cancer at the age of 25, and Williams is cast as his teammate, Gale Sayers, in a deeply moving true-life drama depicting their close friendship on and off the field.

MARY IS A SERGEANT

DALLAS (AP) — Mary Trout, one of 21 women on the Dallas police force, has been named its first woman sergeant.

The attractive 5-foot-6 policewoman joined the force in the juvenile division, later worked as an investigator and on the vice squad.

AGED AND WILLING

The Eskimo Banook (Frank de Kova, far left) insists that the two men who are negotiating an oil lease with him, Charlie (Joe Flynn, second from left) and Haskell (former pro football star Alex Karras) accept the hospitality of his apparent wife (Belle Mitchell) who appears aged and willing in "Love and the Eskimo Wife" on the ABC Television Network's "Love, American Style" Friday, Dec. 3 (10:00-11:00 p.m., EST).

How To Keep Well

By Dr. T.R. Van Dellen

(c) 1971 By The Chicago Tribune

MERCURY MAZE

Scientists found mercury in seawater as far back as 1799. More recently the chemical has been found in fish from many oceans, seas, and lakes. No one is certain just how the mercury got there but nowadays, it is popular to lay the blame on fungicides and industrial wastes. In certain areas this may be true, but researchers have traced much of the element to natural sources.

It is foolish to assume that the 900 tons (less than 40 carloads) of industrial mercury released into the environment has polluted the oceans of the world. This is a drop in the bucket if one considers the water mass of our planet. Furthermore, preserved specimens of fish caught 80 years ago (and recently analyzed) contain twice as much mercury as fish processed today.

Recommendations as to how much fish is safe vary in different countries. Most of the current restrictions involve the intake of tuna and swordfish.

Episodes in Sweden and Japan demonstrate that mercury poisoning develops when large amounts of contaminated water and fish are consumed. In Japan, mercury from a plastics factory was polluting Minamata Bay. The water was used to irrigate the rice paddies and some of the victims ate the contaminated fish as often as three times a day. There were more than 168 illnesses and 52 deaths in two separate instances. Only one per cent of the effluent from the factory was methylmercury, but the people consumed so much fish and water that poisoning was inevitable.

In Sweden, the problem was on an agricultural basis. It stemmed mainly from a methylmercury seed dressing for plants and slimicides used in the paper industry. Swedish scientists have been working on the problem since 1966. Tainted food was the culprit in Iraq and West Pakistan where many of the inhabitants ate wheat seed that was treated with mercury.

Questions on medical topics will be answered by mail if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request.

AMPUTATED LEG

B.C. writes: What effect does a missing leg have on the heart? Is there less strain because one extremity is gone—or more strain?

REPLY

If ther was no strain on the heart when the leg was present, there should be none after amputation. The heart adjusts to the reduction in blood volume, but may be forced to work harder if the individual has trouble walking.

REGULARITY WILL RETURN

D.K. writes: I have been on a 900 calorie diet and have lost 11 pounds. I have a bowel movement only every two or three days. (It used to be a daily affair.) Should anything be done about this situation?

REPLY

No. The change in diet is responsible. Don't upset the applecart by taking laxatives; regularity will return in time.

SCALP RINGWORM

Mrs. K.M. writes: What is an old-fashioned cure for ringworm of the scalp?

REPLY

Educational Television Highlights & Schedule

SATURDAY

Civilization at 2 p.m. will present "The Light of Experience." Sir Kenneth Clark travels from the Holland of Rembrandt, Frans Hals and Vermeer to London and architect Christopher Wren and Mathematician Sir Isaac Newton

Tonight's guest on Speaking Freely at 6 p.m. is Claude Levi-Strauss, anthropologist, author and professor of social anthropology at the College de France. One of France's leading intellectuals, he believes that an anthropologist should approach his subject, not as an archeologist, but as a psychoanalyst—from beneath the surface.

Masterpiece Theatre at 7 p.m. will feature "The Gambler." In this final episode, Grandmamma loses her fortune at the roulette table, much to the chagrin of her money-loving family. Maurice Roeves plays Alexei, her gambling accomplice.

"About Love" will be featured on Hollywood Television Theatre at 10 p.m. A unique puppet group. "The Standwells," also known as the Little Players, perform scenes from three plays: "The Way of the World," "The Baker's Dozen" and the last act of "Camille."

SUNDAY

Civilization at 7 p.m. will present "The Pursuit of Happiness." Love and happiness, the qualities of 18th century music (exemplified by Bach, Handel, Haydn and Mozart) are reflected in the architecture of the period—Rococo. Serious-minded people may call Rococo shallow and corrupt, but Kenneth Clark notes that the framers of the American Declaration of Independence saw fit to mention the pursuit of happiness as a proper aim for mankind.

Part one of a four-part enactment of Leo Tolstoy's soul-searching novel about class conflict in 19th century Russia entitled "Resurrection" will be featured on Masterpiece Theatre at 9 p.m. The play opens as Katerina Maslova, a prostitute, appears in court, charged with poisoning one of her clients. She pleads innocent, claiming she merely administered a sleeping potion. One of the jury is a young prince who knew her when she was an innocent serving girl.

Tonight's guests on Chicago Sounds at 10 p.m. are Lurlean Hunter, a sensuous blues singer and the Enforcers, a rock group.

MONDAY

PBS Special of the Week will present "Home" at 8 p.m. and starring Ralph Richardson, John Gielgud, Mona Washbourne and Dandy Nichols. The play tells about a day in the life of four patients, two men and two women, in a mental institution. The play was written by David Storey.

An original drama of an elderly woman who fights giving in to the stigma of welfare and entitled "The Resolution of Mosie Wax" will be featured on All About Welfare at 9:30 p.m. Her unconscious search for a way out is shown by her contacts with a fatherless black family, a welfare worker, a store clerk and a young free society girl.

TUESDAY

"Police Recruitment and Career Development" will be featured on Law: The Police at 7:30 p.m. This is the first in a series of documentaries featuring interviews with police and law enforcement agency officials throughout Pennsylvania.

Part II of "Take Back Your Mind" will be seen on Black Journal at 10:30 p.m. This is a study of Black Studies programs at American colleges and universities. Among the guests is Minister Louis Farrakhan, head of the Black Muslim mosque in New York City.

WEDNESDAY

Bill Moyers gives in-depth analysis and on-the-spot coverage to the major news story of the week on This Week at 8 p.m.

THURSDAY

Centre County country-western singers Bob and Peggy Dear perform in a concert at Rockview State Correctional Institution on It Takes All Kinds at 10:30 p.m.

FRIDAY

Economist Louis Rukeyser gives tips on stock market investing and analyzes economic trends on Wall Street Week at 8 p.m.

Ann Landers

Answers Your Problems

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am a Cleveland high school girl, back in class after a groovy trip out of town, and already it's awful. The boys are so sloppy it's a crime. They don't even smell clean. I am sick of uncombed, straggly hair, moustaches, sideburns, bare feet and clothes that are so "casual" they look like rejects from a rag bag.

The other night I had a date with a nice guy. He went to kiss me goodnight and I got a mouthful of hair. It was disgusting. I told him not to kiss me again until he got rid of the moustache and trimmed off about a foot of that wild mane. The following Monday he came up to me in school to show me "Exhibit A" as he called it. He had shaved off his moustache and his hair was neatly shaped and several inches shorter. He looked terrific. I could barely believe it.

I'll bet if the girls in this country would boycott guys with dirty, tangled hair, filthy jeans, raunchy sweat shirts and bare feet, we could get this whole country cleaned up again. Will you print the suggestion? Thank you. — Ohio Teen

DEAR TEEN: Beautiful. But, what about the girls with long, dirty hair, bare feet and rauncy sweat shirts -- and no bras, yet -- how about someone boycotting THEM?

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Several working girls have this same problem, so when you help me you will be helping others.

I share an apartment with a girl I'll call Marge. We got along fine until she began to date this loafer. I should tell you that most of the furniture in this place is mine -- and it's very good stuff. Marge and this unemployed lout take over the living room every night, laughing and talking, playing music, and rolling around on my good couch. I can't get to sleep until he leaves and this has cut into my rest considerably.

The grocery bill is higher now, of course, and since this guy came into the picture no snack is safe, no soft drink, or hard drink, or loose cigaret. After he leaves it's as if a herd of locusts had descended on the place.

I don't want to be petty or cheap, and I do like Marge a lot, but this boyfriend of hers is too much. What can I do? — Ontario Dead End

DEAR ONTARIO: Since I do not know some important facts -- such as who moved in with whom -- I can't be of much help. This I CAN tell you, however: The arrangement is not working and someone has got to move out. Next time, set up better rules for roommates. Get it in writing -- and make a more astute selection.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Please give me a third party's view in regard to borrowing tools. As a person who is sick of having to go ask neighbors for MY lawn mower, shovel, rake, garden hose, flashlight, wheelbarrow, lawn sprinkler, hedge shears, pliers, garage ladder -- just name it and they've borrowed it -- I need your advice. I might also add that most of the borrowed tools somehow get rusted, broken, worn out, and "misplaced." I've even had people deny that they had borrowed the tools and that was the end of it.

Is it mean, unneighborly or selfish to say, "No -- I am sorry, I do not lend out my equipment." What do you say, Ann? — Paducah Headache

DEAR P. HEAD: In light of the fact that you've had some bad experiences with your neighbors, I believe you would be justified in saying NO, particularly to those with whom you've had the bad experiences.

How far should a teen-age couple go? Can necking be safe? When does it become too hot to handle? Send for Ann Landers' booklet, "Necking And Petting -- What Are The Limits?" Mail your request to Ann Landers in care of your newspaper enclosing 50 cents in coin and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Guest Soloist

Richard West, Music Band Director of Beaty Junior High School, is to be guest soloist at the Episcopal Cathedral of St. Paul, 131 West 6th street, Erie, Monday, Nov. 29 at 8:15 p.m.

Mr. West is to be appearing with the Cathedral Choir, under the direction of the former organist and choirmaster of Trinity Memorial Episcopal Church, Warren, Carl E. Stout.

The concert is to feature the Mass in G Major by Franz Schubert and the Cantata No. 80, based on a Mighty Fortress Is Our God. Mr. West is to be Bass soloist in this cantata. An orchestra of 22 musicians from Erie, organized by Raymond Marsh, first cellist of the Erie Philharmonic is to accompany the concert.

Karen Keene is to be at the organ and Mr. Stout is to be conducting. The public is invited to attend.

Extension Group

The Lander Home Extension Group will meet at 10 a.m. Wednesday at the Lester Cook home. Members are to bring nylon net and felt pieces for making net Christmas table cloths.

Ten members attended the Christmas Fair in Warren attired in old-fashioned clothes. They displayed a Christmas tree decorated with home made ornaments and popcorn as well as jewelry made by the group. Serving on the committee for this project were Mrs. Richard Philblad, Mrs. Tom Firth, Mrs. Richard Anderson and Mrs. Ronald Dunbar.

The Lander Sunshine Club met at the parish house for a tureen dinner and tied a quilt. Mrs. Harry Light presided at the business meeting. A Christmas party was planned for Dec. 16 at the home of Mrs. Edith Hitchcock. A $1 gift exchange will be featured.

Hints From Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:

My husband's mother is a patient in a nursing home and when it came time to buy gowns for her, the Matron suggested the type used in hospitals.

I priced these and found them to be very expensive. So I bought the shorty nightgowns in bright shades of yellow, pink, blue, etc. The brushed nylon ones were best, I thought.

I slit the gowns down the back and bound them with matching bias. The Matron loved the idea.

The gowns were so easy to put on and needed no ironing.

The bright shades are so much more cheerful than the drab unbleached ones you usually see and the cost is at a minimum.

Peggy

• • •

Heloise

• • •

DEAR HELOISE:

Add a spoonful of dried egg mix to the flour when you fry chicken or steak.

Makes them a lovely golden brown.

Russell Mothers Plan Bazaar

The November meeting of the Russell Mother's Club was held at the home of Mrs. Abbey Benson which featured an informative program on Holiday Decorating.

Plans were completed for the Christmas Bazaar for which each member is to bring two handmade items and a gift for a Grab Bag.

At the December meeting, the club will be making Christmas gifts for the Russell kindergarten children. Those on the committee for this project are Mrs. Beverly Chase, Mrs. Abbey Benson, Mrs. Linda Whitten and Mrs. Ann Brecht.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. Beverly Chase and Mrs. Nancy Benson.

The next meeting is to be held December 7, at the home of Mrs. Beverly Chase.

Hints From Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:

This hint is for mothers with little ones still in diapers.

The new snap-on pants with disposable diapers are great. The only drawback is the disposal problem.

I solved that easy.

Fold cloth diapers in thirds (on the longest side).

Sew down both edges with the longest machine stitch.

This long length folded in half fits in the snap-on pants. (The size for babies over twelve pounds.)

You never have to worry about the paper diapers chafing baby's bottom.

And no more diapers to fold. They are already sewed and prefolded for you.

Mr. Ferrara

To Be Ordained

Calvary Baptist Church is to be the scene for an ordination service for Joseph Ferrara Sunday at 4 p.m. The public is cordially invited to attend.

A Council of 16 Baptist Churches examined Mr. Ferrara on October 29 and recommended unanimously that the local Church proceed with ordination. The following men are to participate in the service: Henry Blick, Jr., Howard Faulkner, Truman Halvorsen, A. Wallace Olson, Gary Rain, Richard Reed, John Soneson and David Wilcox.

Mr. Ferrara was born in New Brunswick, New Jersey. He received his A.B. from Rutgers University and B.D. from Westminster Theological Seminary. Mr. Ferrara is married and the father of a baby girl. The Ferraras are members of the Calvary Baptist Church and Joe is Youth Director of the YMCA.

8 And 40 Salon Meets

Warren County Salon 405 of 8 and 40 held its November meeting at Warren Senior Center with Miss Ruth Work, the new Chapeau, presiding.

The group welcomed a Salon member, Alberta Germonto, who is visiting in Warren. It was announced that 20 paid memberships had been received. A book of poems was sent to Orabelle Shick who has been confined as a surgical patient at Buffalo General Hospital. The Salon is selling napkins as a money-making projdct. There will be no special program with the x-ray unit this year.

A letter was read from Mrs. Sarah Ann Sellers, departmental nurses scholarship chairman, urging everyone to get in touch with Eight and Forty.

The Warren Partners served lunch to the 12 partners in attendance.

The next meeting will be held at 8 p.m., Dec. 16 at Warren Senior Center with Warren Partners as hostesses. A Christmas party with $1 gift exchange will follow the business session.

VFW Auxiliary Plans Affairs

A reinstated charter member, Helen Hunter, was welcomed back Tuesday, Nov. Nov. 23 at the VFW Ladies Auxiliary to Post 631 meeting.

Mrs. Willis Sullivan presided at the session, held Tuesday since the regular meeting night fell on Thanksgiving Day.

The group voted to send checks to the Erie Veterans Administration Hospital and Erie Soldiers and Sailors Home. Chairman Kate Lingo and Mrs. William Weaver reported on successful fund raising projects. Mrs. Richard English will be in charge of table decorations for the tureen dinner Christmas party to be held Dec. 21. Mrs. Charles Adams and Mrs. James Saines will furnish dessert.

Plans were made to serve dinner for the Dads of Foreign Service Veterans at their January state convention. Flowers will be sent to a hospitalized member. Articles were presented to Mrs. Saines for the Rouse Hospital to be used as Christmas gifts and bingo prizes. A basket of groceries was filled for a needy family for Thanksgiving. Mrs. Ronald Merchant won the evening award.

Lunch was served by Mrs. Richard English and Mrs. Thomas Lyle with the table decorated in Thanksgiving motif. The next regular meeting is at 7:30 p.m. Thursday, Dec. 9.

Festive Fondue Party

Beef fondue fits well into the holiday picture for small informal gatherings. A cook-your-own treat, it frees a homemaker for hostessing. Simply supply inch cubes of sirloin steak, a fondue pot containing hot oil and sauces for dipping.

Gifts For Giving

Tuesday, November 30 the Warren County Extension Homemakers are to volunteer their time and gifts to help make Christmas at the North Warren State Hospital.

In cooperation with the hospital staff, the homemakers are to help patients select gifts for a friend or relative. The ladies will then Christmas-wrap the presents and mail the items to the patients' loved ones.

Cookies and coffee are to be served throughout the event. A luncheon will be available for the homemakers.

The committee members are Mrs. Madge Kehm, chairman, Mrs. Virginia Bielawski, Mrs. Evalyn Wilson, and Mrs. Arlene Curtis.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE SERVICES -- Oppression in any form needs to be faced up to and overcome.

This is a theme to be discussed at Christian Science church services Sunday in a Bible Lesson-Sermon entitled Ancient and Modern Necromancy, alias Mesmerism and Hypnotism, Denounced.

"Be not overcome of evil, but overcome evil with good," one of the Scriptural texts states.

A spiritual solution to oppression is indicated in these words of Mary Baker Eddy in Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures: "A few immortal sentences, breathing the omnipotence of divine justice, have been potent to break despotic fetters and abolish the whipping-post and slave market; but oppression neither went down in blood, nor did the breath of freedom come from the cannon's mouth. Love is the liberator."

Services at First Church of Christ, Scientist, 312 Market Street, begin at 11 a.m. All are welcome.

First United Methodist Church

A Very Special Day

By Rev. Jack E. Spencer, First United Methodist Church, Warren, Pa.

THIS SUNDAY is a very special day. It is the First Sunday in Advent. Advent is that period of 4 weeks before Christmas when Christians reflect upon the meaning of the coming of Lord Jesus Christ into the world as the Son of God and Savior of the World. It is a time of anticipation and preparation, a time of penetence and renewal.

Luke told us that when Christ was born there was no room in the inn and the greatest man ever to be born was nursed in a stable. He also told us that his coming brought good news of great joy to all men. Two thousand years after that event there are still those who have not experienced His good news, and have no room within the inns of their own life and behavior for him.

Advent 1971 is the time when the greatest miracle and mystery of the ages can become a reality. If those who call themselves by His name and those who hear that name would truly evaluate the quality and character of his life, honestly examine their own attitudes and behavior by that of Jesus Christ—I firmly believe Christmas would not be a date on the calendar but an experience in life.

Christmas is the celebration of the incarnation—that is God becoming a human being. During this advent season—let God become incarnate in your life—let the spirit of forgiveness, compassion, kindness and goodness come to dwell in and express itself through your daily living. Jesus came that we might have life, and have it abundantly. During this advent season, may abundant life be experienced and shared by us.

"This is the big one, boys . . . Now before rushing out, who needs to go to the powder room?"

Conversational Counselling And Compost

By Bernie Wingert, County Agent

Last Tuesday morning was the first really snappy morning of the season. Bill Allen, who owns the Brokenstraw Camp Grounds west of Pittsfield, told me his thermometer said 5 deg. below. This kind of weather makes car doors groan, rhododendron leaves curl backwards, little dogs walk on three legs and heat pipes clink.

But it wasn't quite that chilly at our home and the sun went to work immediately on the hillsop. Some mornings on this hill are pretty difficult to describe. For those who have lived in the valley and spent the forenoons wrapped in fog and haze the morning sun never gets as much appreciation as it deserves. Imagine, if you can, all the Pine boughs hanging heavy with snow, and maple trees, bared now of leaves, but with each twig and branch dressed in a coat of delicate frost. So carefully was this coating applied during the night that every tiny particle of it seemed to collect and hold the sun until the whole landscape swam in a brilliance that should ordinarily be reserved for heavenly folks, or spacemen at least. But I was glad that we common people could see and appreciate that display. I wouldn't want to trade such winter mornings for all that Florida or the Bahamas can offer.

It is impossible not to expand under such a sky. It's good for your mind as well as your body. And not only the kids waiting for the school bus, but the rest of us couldn't help but breathe a little deeper and step a little prouder. I'm sure not everyone shares this feeling for winter, but some times it seems to me that a late November day which starts with such an experience is so exhilarating that it offers as much renewal as springtime. It's rather like a drink of good wine.

We all have our own likes and dislikes concerning the seasons but I think perhaps many of us were conditioned early in life to enjoying a morning just for morning's sake.

When you swing open the barn door and look out at the straw and hay clumps sticking up through snow in the barnyard, when you see the woods horse, rough coated and breathing plumes of frosted air from each nostril, and watch the cattle bunch together as they crowd toward the watering trough, you can't help but feel good. There's a touch of something homey about these scenes that the winter sun adds to and makes shine in a memory for a long time. Add the sounds of a dog barking and a Mother calling for breakfast, and you really do have a portrait.

But, if when you're trudging off in the morning you see yesterday's newspaper flapping miserably on the sidewalk, and you smell the strong odor of sewer gas held down by a smoggy haze resting just at the top of the town's tallest building it's bad. If the sounds you hear are the roars of a truck and the shouts of the driver at his helper, it's sad. And worst of all, if your ears are cold, and your coat collar is too short, then perhaps winter is only to be endured and not enjoyed.

So here we are at the end of another column, which turns out to be Conversation and no Counselling. It seems as though I run short on "counselling" matters this time of year when I'm thinking about Thanksgiving and going to Deer Camp. But I do hope you won't feel that my thoughts on enjoying mornings are only Compost.

A fellow named Chauncey Piety wrote a short verse that I think really expresses what I was trying to say about appreciation. He calls it THANKSLIVING—

"Were thanks with every gift expressed,
Each day would be Thanksgiving;
Were gratitude its very best
Each life would be Thanksliving."

LARRY STOTZ:

A Ring Of Wood

A RING OF WOOD

The first Thanksgiving Days were harvest festivals, and were in celebration of bountiful crops for which the people thanked God. The first New England Thanksgiving came into being on December 13, 1621 and memorialized the corn harvest which assured the Plymouth Colonists that they would have enough to eat in the coming winter. This first Thanksgiving in the New World consisted of three days of feasting and prayers.

A crop, which few people are aware of at Thanksgiving time, is the annual ring of wood that has been added to each of the billions of trees, of infinite variety, that form the forests of America. This current growth is so unspectacular, compared to fields of corn, that to some people trees never seem to grow.

The slow growing, thick-walled cells of the summer wood, which followed the fast growing thin-walled cells of the spring wood will form the division line between this season's growth and next year's spring growth. This annual ring, made up of spring wood and summer wood, constitutes the 1971 timber crop in America.

Fitting like a glove, next to the cambium cells just beneath the bark, this ring of wood extends over the entire tree—out to the tiniest twig. The thickness of the annual ring at stump height might be almost microscopic on a slow growing bristle-cone pine, or it might be half an inch wide on a fast growing southern pine, such as slash pine. For the same species of tree, it may vary immensely depending upon soil conditions, current rainfall, or competition by neighbors in a crowded stand.

The number of annual rings that it takes to produce an inch of radial growth is very important to the forester. With an increment borer, which is a hollow auger made of the finest Swedish steel, the forester extracts a small core of wood from which he can determine the growth rate for the past several decades. He is mostly concerned, in a managed forest, with what the annual rings reveal about the growth of the trees in the past ten years. A heavy falling off in growth may indicate that the stand needs thinning. By increasing the growth rate on selected quality trees, through thinning out competitors, a greater financial return on the tree crop may be expected than by trying to carry too many trees per acre to maturity.

The width of the annual ring can also affect the quality of the timber product. Too rapid growth in softwoods, such as the pines, is not desirable. Structural weaknesses and lower density in the wood product are reflected by wide annual rings. The highly prized old growth white pine used in pattern stock was made up of many rings to the inch, uniformly spaced. The white pine mast timbers, that were cut in Warren County in the early days, could not have withstood the buffetting of the fierce gales as the sailing ships rounded "the Horn" had it not been for the uniformly spaced annual rings of just the right number to the inch of radial growth. But in hardwoods, such as black cherry, the faster the growth, the denser the wood. And in white ash, only the fastest growing second-growth trees produce material for premium quality baseball bats. The slow growing old-growth ash is too brash.

The big advantage a timber crop has over annual crops, such as corn or wheat, is that harvesting of it can be postponed when current market conditions are poor. It is not lost, even if harvesting is postponed for a decade or more, unless it has been killed or damaged by fire, insects, or disease.
